Stalin To See Bevin, Marshall In Near Future

MOSCOW (Reuter)—Prime Minister Stalin is expected to receive Foreign Secretary Bevin and State Secretary Marshall in the near future, the Moscow radio announced today.

Tonight France notified the Council of Foreign Ministers she could not agree to economic reconstruction of Germany unless other powers agreed to her demands for guarantees of German coal.

Foreign Minister Bidault, answering the rejection of his request for coal guarantees by Foreign Secretary Bevin Wednesday night, said:

"I am directed by my government to state that we cannot be parties to agreement on other problems raised—economic unity, level of industry and reparations—without a previous settlement of the scheme for export of coal in a sense which is in conformity with our request.

"No different attitude could be adopted by any French government."

Russia agreed Wednesday to a larger share of German coal for France.

Meanwhile, authoritative sources said Moscow's official reaction to President Truman's Greek-Turkish proposals seemed to be taking a trend toward the view that the United States is developing an out-and-out anti-Soviet policy.

First inklings of the official Russian line were reaching American ears informally today and roused immediate speculation as to what effect, if any such a view would have on the prospects for reaching agreement in current negotiations on the future of Germany.

Foreign Minister Molotov and State Secretary Marshall agreed at Wednesday night's session of the Council of Foreign Ministers that it was entirely possible for the Big Four to compromise their differences and reach an accord on critical German economic problems.

Molotov appeared to be in a particularly conciliatory mood, but aside from agreement that differences could be reconciled, there was scant progress toward writing a German peace treaty.

In any event, seasoned observers in the U.S. delegation feel that the essence of the Big Four negotiations is that the western powers and the Soviet Union each are seeking to create the kind of Germany which each side feels will fall most readily under its control.

To the extent this hypothesis is true, the difficulties still in the path of the Moscow conference are magnified, despite the friendly and hopeful statements by Marshall and Molotov.

The Council adjourned today's session at 7.10 p.m.

Paraguayan Rebels Drive For Capital; Want Democracy

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—A correspondent for the newspaper La Prensa reported today that the Paraguayan rebel radio at Concepcion announced that insurgents had started a southward drive on the capital, Asuncion.

The Brazilian news agency Asapress said Capt. Belisario Dorio, hero of the Chaco war and newly-appointed military commander of the rebel-held border town of Pedro Juan Caballero, had declared in an interview that "the Paraguayan revolution has no Communist color and its aim is to bring Paraguay into true democracy with the ousting of (President Higinio) Morinigo."

Big 4 To Hear Views Of Allies On Peace Treaty With Germany

MOSCOW (CP) — Big Four deputies have agreed that the Council of Foreign Ministers should hear the views of Allied and former enemy countries on the German peace treaty, but Russia is still stubbornly opposed to allowing the middle and smaller Allied powers actually to take part in the deliberations, it was learned today.

SCRAMBLED REPORT

The deputies on Germany will present a makeshift and scrambled report to the Big Four late today with few points settled.

The question of the participation of 18 middle and small powers, including Canada, has raised one of the most serious differences of opinion at the Big Four meeting here.

Britain and the United States support their participation, but Russia maintains such a policy would violate the Big Four Potsdam agreement.

The deputies, ordered last week to go into the business of treaty-drafting procedure, held their final session today.

It was understood they drew up a report which will merely say that the drafting work should be done by four permanent committees of the Council of Foreign Ministers and that an information and consultation conference should be established to link the council to other Allies.

Under this scheme it was agreed that the Big Four Foreign Ministers will hear at an unspecified date the views of all Allied belligerent and all former enemy states which turned against and fought Germany.

NO PROGRESS

The deputies got nowhere on the British suggestion that all 18 Allies be members of the four permanent committees.

The United States generally supported Britain, but would prefer the clause to read "a convenient number of states" rather than all 18 Allies. But it was learned authoritatively that the U.S. was particularly anxious that Canada should be permitted adequately to participate and State Secretary Marshall may make a strong statement before the Council itself.

Arena Roof Work Starts Monday

Work will be started next week on construction of the Memorial Arena roof and supporting columns, Ald. R. A. C. Dewar, chairman of the arena committee, was informed today by telephone from Bennett & White, Vancouver contractors.

All the steel needed for the job has been acquired, the contractors stated, and one carload is already on the job. In addition all the lumber needed has been ordered and delivery is being made.

The superintendent of the job will leave Vancouver tonight and will hold a consultation with Ald. Dewar Friday morning.

H. M. Lickley, chief engineer of the firm, will come to Victoria Monday to get construction started and confidence was expressed that the job would be completed on schedule.

The bond for half the contract price of $138,919 has been prepared and will be turned over to the city next week when the contract for the work is formally signed, City Solicitor A. J. Patton was informed.

Old Father Thames Gets Into A Tizzy

Normally placid, the River Thames is jumping mad here as a result of its waters having been swollen by a thaw after weeks of the heaviest snow England has ever suffered in modern times. A kneeling man looks down at the changed river in awe as it roars through the weir at Teddington.

British Civilians, Soldiers Waging Desperate Battle With Rising Floods

LONDON (CP)—Thousands of civilians, soldiers, police and prisoners of war today waged a losing battle to hold back rain-swollen rivers which already have spread a trail of destruction in scores of towns and villages.

More rain was forecast, even as weary volunteers were led to repair breached dikes in the fenlands of the east Midlands and as army assault boats were dispatched to the aid of 1,000 persons trapped by the overflowing Don River in the Yorkshire village of Bentley.

The army acted after the people of Bentley, two miles north of Doncaster, had telephoned an urgent message for help. The message, sent out late Wednesday, said the trapped residents had been without food for more than 24 hours. A police officer said over the telephone that water was four feet deep in the village.

Army and police officials prepared to evacuate 10,000 persons from marooned homes in the Thames valley to emergency billets.

Officers of the Royal Engineers were briefed at midnight on anti-flood measures for use in the fenland country north and east of Cambridge, where an estimated 40,000 acres of wheat-producing soil have been ruined and thousands of sheep, cattle and poultry have drowned.

The Ministry of Fuel and Power said floods had slowed the movement of coal to industries in the west Midlands and Yorkshire.

Although flood conditions became worse in most areas, the Thames dropped two inches during the night and flood waters began receding.

Most highways were blocked in central and south Wales. Lingering snows still blocked roads in Scotland.

Seattle Ferries Resume Service As Strike Settled

SEATTLE (AP) — Regular ferry service plied the waters of Puget Sound today for the first time in almost a week after members of the C.I.O.-Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association had given "two to one" approval of its new contract.

Partial ferry service to Bremerton and Bainbridge Island was resumed Wednesday and most routes were expected back on regular prestrike schedules later today.

Terms of the settlement, reached Monday at a conference in Olympia between Puget Sound Navigation Company officials, the union and federal and state mediators, include an estimated 23.8 per cent average over-all wage increase over the old scale.

The six-day tie-up affected the company's 22 ferries. Many small vessels, navy LST's, seaplanes and the state-owned ferry at the Tacoma Narrows were resorted to as emergency transportation by the Sound's 10,000 daily commuters.

The Iroquois will arrive here from Seattle on schedule tomorrow morning following the agreement reached between the Puget Sound Navigation Company and C.I.O. Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, George Paulin, agent for the Black Ball Ferry, announced today.

Mr. Paulin said he expected a considerable backlog of freight and passengers to arrive aboard the ferry tomorrow. Victoria-bound freight piled up on Seattle wharves when the vessel was tied up last Thursday and many passengers canceled their passage due to the strike.

The Iroquois will leave Seattle tonight at 11.45 and will arrive in Victoria at 8.45 tomorrow morning. She will leave here for Seattle via Port Angeles at 9.45.

The strike ended late yesterday after Puget Sound ferry engineers voted to accept terms agreed on by negotiators for ending the six-day ferry strike. Terms of the agreement have not yet been disclosed, but it is understood that it is only a tentative agreement pending further negotiations with company officials.

City Pays For Weather In Higher Milk Prices

Those balmy summer days, of which Victoria is proud, actually are paid for by Victorians—in the form of higher prices fo milk.

E. C. Carr, B.C.'s one-man milk board, told the legislative agriculture committee today that milk prices to consumers in Greater Victoria had been set one-cent a quart higher than for Vancouver because of the higher cost of production here.

This higher producing cost, said Mr. Carr, confirming the suggestion of C. T. Beard, Coalition, Esquimalt, was caused by less rainfall on the east coast of Vancouver Island which in turn was responsible for the poorer pasture during the summer.

Mr. Carr said two applications for increasing the price of milk in Victoria now were before the board.

65-Cent Butter Seen If Control Lifted

Decontrol of butter prices by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board might result in consumer prices of butter rising to 65 cents a pound, Tom King, acting chairman of the legislative agricultural committee, indicated today.

E. C. Carr, B.C.'s one man milk board, said the first move which could be expected was removal of a subsidy on butter. This would result in butter prices rising 8½ to 9 cents a pound, he said.

"What would happen beyond that I do not know," he said.

Maquinna Ashore Off Fraser River; 2 Others Aground

VANCOUVER (CP—The Canadian Pacific coastal steamship Princess Maquinna ran aground on a sandbar off the mouth of the Fraser River during fog early today.

Company officials reported the vessel had not suffered any damage, and that she would be pulled off at high tide.

The Princess Maquinna operates from Victoria, along the west coast of Vancouver Island. She was bringing a cargo of fish to Vancouver after unloading passengers at Victoria when she went aground.

A tug is standing by the Maquinna.

None of the 1,777-ton ship's 40-man crew, under Capt. Peter Leslie, was injured in the mishap. She had no passengers aboard.

Fog is also believed to have caused the grounding of two other vessels off the Washington coast.

The United States Coast Guard reported the American Liberty freighter Lawrence Victory aground in the Strait of Juan de Fuca about 20 miles from Victoria. The other grounded vessel is a fishing boat, the Avalon, which is reported to have gone ashore on Lopez Island, in U.S. waters in the San Juan area.

Little Hope In Plan For Saving Ducks

CALGARY (CP) — "I don't think closing of the hunting season on migratory birds in Canada for a year would make any difference in the duck population," George Watt, president of the Alberta Fish and Game Association, said in commenting on the proposal by the National Audubon Society that the season be closed for a year. With 2,000,000 licenses annually in the U.S. many times as many ducks were shot in the U.S. as in Canada.

9,000,000 Pounds Milk Imported Here Last Year

Production of milk in the Greater Victoria area fell 9,000,000 pounds short of consumption, E. C. Carr, one-man milk board, told the legislative agriculture committee today.

Of the 29,000,000 pounds consumed here last year, it was necessary to import from northern Vancouver Island milk-producing areas and the Fraser Valley about 9,000,000 pounds.

Mr. Carr said there was plenty of milk produced in the Fraser Valley for the Greater Vancouver fluid milk trade.

Fifth Victim, Month-Old Baby Still Missing

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—The overflowing and turbulent Red Deer River dropped back to near-normal level this morning and gave up the bodies of its five victims.

Caught by the sudden surge of the swollen river early Wednesday, two women and three children died as the one-room shack they had moved into only 24 hours before, was smashed by a four-foot wall of water and moved eight feet.

The victims were tentatively identified as Mrs. William Harps, 25, her two children, Stanley, 4, Donald, 2, and Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Harp's sister, and a one-month old baby whose body was still missing.

It was reported the women and children had come to Red Deer from Hay River, at the lower end of Slave Lake, N.W.T., and that their husbands were to join them later.

Neighbors living near the one-room tar paper shack were unable to find any trace of the family after they had reported hearing screams when the river surged and trapped the shack.

CLUNG TO FENCE

The body of a red-haired woman clad in a kimono was recovered by Willard Tremple of north Red Deer as the subsiding flood left it clinging to a wire fence about half an hour after the water had dropped this morning.

Bodies of the other woman and the small boys were recovered from a deep hole a few yards from a bank where they would probably have been safe had they been able to reach it.

It was learned Mrs. Harps had ordered furniture and milk to be delivered to the shack Wednesday. A satchel of clothing was found in piled-up ice south of the shack where it had apparently been dropped by the family as they tried to flee ahead of the flood.

Wednesday, C. Y. Comas told police he went to a house in the flooded area in a boat and that he saw a baby's jacket floating in the water. As he tried to bring it to the boat with an oar a baby's body slipped out of the jacket and was carried away by the rushing waters.

EFFECTS WIDESPREAD

Although it was estimated the loss would amount to no more than $8,000, the effects of the flood were widespread. A home on the north Red Deer side of the river was swamped in eight feet of water.

In the Teasdale stockyards east of the Canadian National Railway tracks, 25 head of cattle were drowned or killed by ice pressure while in barns.

An estimated 100 head of sheep were also drowned only a few feet from high ground they were unable to reach when their heavy wool became waterlogged.

Mayor J. E. Green of Red Deer said the river "broke" above the city this year and farther downstream it remained icebound.

The normally quiet stream which flows through central Alberta and Red Deer, 100 miles south of Edmonton on the main Calgary and Edmonton highway, rose 14 feet when thick ice cracked.

150 Vice Establishments Running In Vancouver Lately, Says Chief

VANCOUVER (CP) — In the words of Chief Constable Walter Mulligan, 150 vice establishments up to recently operated in this city.

He made this disclosure Wednesday to the police commission at the hearing of appeals of 23 policemen dismissed or demoted for neglect of duty in combating vice conditions here. Today it appeared likely a royal commission will be asked to probe the conduct of the police commission.

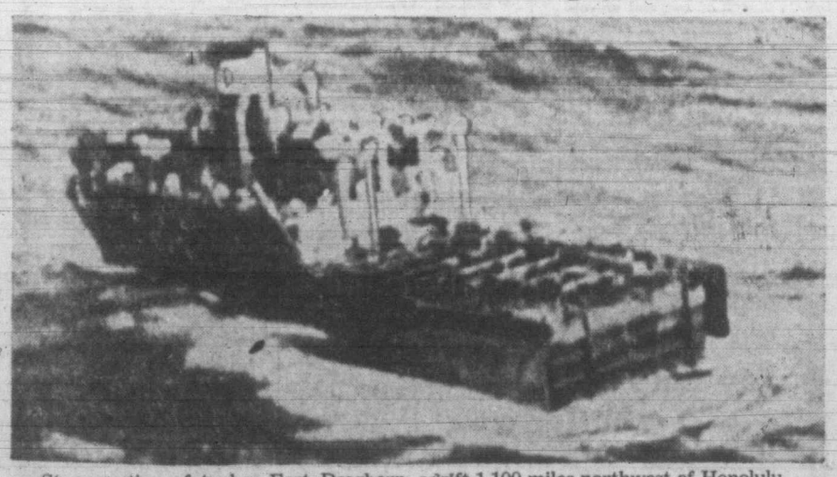
Dugal McAlpine, counsel for a number of the policemen, said he would apply for the royal commission to investigate the manner in which the police board treated the dismissed officers and inquire into the "motives behind the hearing" and the police shake-up which brought it about.

Included in the list of 150 establishments mentioned by Chief Mulligan were 37 gambling places in Chinatown, 12 disorderly houses and at least 50 major bootlegging places. All had been in operation for some time, the chief said.

Earlier, the commission interrogated suave Harry Tisman, self-confessed gambler, who gave an inside view of gambling rackets, disclosing that as much as $7,500 had been won by one man during a night's play at one gambling house.

The police did not worry gamblers, he admitted, telling of bribes paid to high-ranking police officers and also of a "fix" which had kept both Tisman and his brother Louis from a commission hearing in April, 1946.

Survivors Praise Radio Operator



Stern section of tanker Fort Dearborn adrift 1,100 miles northwest of Honolulu.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A one-armed radio operator who finally ground out a distress signal on a makeshift set after four previous attempts was acclaimed a hero today by 10 survivors of the broken tanker Fort Dearborn.

While the U.S. navy continued to search for 12 or 13 more crew members still missing with a lifeboat, the 10 survivors who reached San Francisco Wednesday gave the story of how their ship snapped apart March 12 during a storm and cast them adrift on the bow section for 50 hours.

They all credited "sparks"—radio operator Henry F. Wiehr of Los Angeles—with saving their lives.

Wiehr, despite the handicap of only one arm and smashed glasses, sought vainly to transmit an SOS with broken, water-soaked equipment, and finally, with the help of the chief steward, rigged an emergency set.

The weak SOS was picked up nine hours after the Fort Dearborn had broken and was relayed to the American Lines Ss. Gen. Gordon, closest to the scene. The Gen. Gordon steamed 300 miles through heavy seas and reached the drifting bow section in 16 hours.

Two of the Gordon's lifeboats were smashed before survivors were picked up by a motor launch from a second rescue ship, the freighter St. John Victory.

Later 22 men were taken off the drifting stern half of the ship.

A lifeboat with 12 or 13 men aboard still is unreported. Survivors arriving here felt these men had perished.

Mayhew Asks Speed In Conversion Of Gordon Head Huts

OTTAWA, Ont. (Special) — Robert W. Mayhew, M.P. for Victoria, has asked the Department of Veterans' Affairs to endeavor to "make a record" in speed in making the army huts at Gordon Head available to the Citizens' Rehabilitation Council for conversion into family housing units.

Mr. Mayhew addressed his letter to the Minister of Veterans' Affairs, Hon Ian Mackenzie, yesterday. He expects an immediate reply.

In the meantime, Mr. Mayhew is urging that no definite disposition be made of the Gordon Head Armories Drill Hall. He believes that it should be kept available as a recreation centre for the new community, once the huts are made available for family housing purposes.

Workers Object But Buckingham Palace Repairs Must Go On

LONDON (CP) — Union officials of workers employed in repairing bomb-damaged Buckingham Palace have accepted a Works Ministry ruling that the job is "economical and sensible" and must go on.

The men had said they were "disgusted at being employed on such a site as Buckingham Palace when suffering among the working class owing to inadequate housing is deplorable."

This sentiment was embodied in a resolution passed at a meeting of 150 workmen in the palace basement asking the National Federation of Building Trades operatives to obtain for them "more essential work, such as housing."

E. L. Jones, secretary of the London Regional Committee of Operatives, told reporters:

"The Works Ministry thinks it more economical and sensible to go on with work already started on bomb damage and modernization of heating and water systems rather than to wait until the palace has fallen into even worse repair.

"After all, I suppose, keeping the King's palace ship-shape is as reasonable as redecorating theatres and dog tracks."

Believe Chilliwack Children Have Bombs

Christianity Faces Great Test, Says Mr. King

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister King said Wednesday that Canada, as other countries, was menaced by the "terrible threat of totalitarianism."

Mr. King spoke of the relationships of church and state in the Dominion at a luncheon tendered by United Church members of the Commons and the Senate to Rt. Rev. T. W. Jones, Moderator of the General Council of the United Church of Canada.

"The spirit of the Christian church is disappearing all too rapidly," he said.

"If we cease to be Christians we are doomed. A crusaders' cavalcade, such as you gentlemen of the United Church of Canada . . . is most urgently required."

Municipalities To Have Daylight Saving

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Advance reports from Fraser Valley municipalities today indicated that a large majority of municipal officials opposed any change from standard time. They will, however, adopt daylight saving time for the sole purpose of avoiding confusion.

Daylight saving, which will be enforced this summer in Vancouver and New Westminster, will be discussed by various municipal councils this week.

Solomon Mussalem, reeve of Maple Ridge, said his council would deal with the matter, although he personally did not approve of daylight saving, "especially in farming districts."

Reeve J. W. Park of Pitt Meadows was decidedly opposed to any change. He claimed it ure, as did Delta Reeve J. W. should be a Dominion-wide meas- Kirkland.

Eagles Pledge Full Support To School Program

Members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles Wednesday night unanimously pledged themselves to give every support to Greater Victoria's school building program. A film prepared by the school board was shown and M. P. Paine stressed the necessity for the passage of the schools by-law. He urged all citizens to make certain the future of their children by turning out and voting.

The school population is expected to increase rapidly by 1951 and the building program is to be spread over the next five years.

"It is necessary to start now if we are to be ready to receive the great increase which will soon be pouring into our schools," said Mr. Paine. He said the new technical school will be a great asset. Surveys among labor groups and employers had shown the urgent need for this type of education and Victoria was lagging behind other cities in providing technical education facilities.

Seek World Pact On Wheat Prices

LONDON (CP)—International wheat council delegates got down to business Wednesday in private sessions with delegation leaders in statements assuring their eagerness to achieve world agreement on price stability.

Norman Robertson spoke for Canada and it was understood he declared the Dominion's support for policies beneficial to producer and consumer.

It was learned that no agreement on prices yet has been discussed by the 40-power conference but a range between $1.25 and $1.80 a bushel likely will be considered for the international accord.

This range was considered in preliminary discussions at Washington but alternatives also are expected to be examined by the London meeting.

Party Goes To Scale Mt. McKinley; Study Cosmic Rays At 18,000 Ft.

EDMONTON (CP) — "Operation White Tower," a scientific expedition, was preparing today to scale Alaska's 20,300-foot Mount McKinley, highest peak on the North American continent.

Bradford Washburn, director of the New England Museum of Natural History, will head the expedition, which will study cosmic rays at the 18,000-foot level. Mrs. Washburn will accompany the party.

Equipment sent from Minneapolis will be flown in from here to a base at the 6,000-foot level by bush pilots and chartered aircraft. From that base, equipment will be flown to the 18,000-foot level and dropped by parachute or free fall so that materials will be available when the party reaches the level from the established base.

The expedition is expected to camp for two or three weeks at the higher level to study cosmic rays, and later to attempt to scale the peak.

Tents for the expedition have already been cleared through Edmonton to the party's assembling base at Anchorage, Alaska.

Commons Debates Extension Of Farm Products Export Control

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons continued its study of agriculture controls Wednesday and heard from Agriculture Minister Gardiner a statement indicating no announcement of increases in the prices of dairy products would be made until April.

The discussion on dairy products arose during clause-by-clause study of the bill to continue for another year government controls on the sale and exprt of farm products.

Mr. Gardiner said he would meet in mid-April with the advisory committee on agriculture prices, composed of government and producer representatives. He said announcements would be made "as soon as possible" after these disussions.

During study of the measure, Mr. Gardiner made a change to meet opposition requests that producers be given representation on federal boards charged with the responsibility of seeing that food contracts with Britain are filled.

F. S. Zaplitny, C.C.F., Dauphin, Man., and John Charlton, P.C., Brant, Ont., withdrew proposed amendments.

Mr. Gardiner told the House that subsidies on agricultural products have totaled more than $350,475,400 since 1939. They include premiums on cheese, cold storage, apples and agricultural products generally.

In the Senate, there was continued debate on a bill aimed at making legal the manufacture and sale in Canada of oleomargarine, the butter substitute.

800 Attended Lake Cowichan Klondike Frolic

LAKE COWICHAN—Be-whiskered sourdoughs and belles of the North filled Lake Cowichan Community Hall, 800 strong Saturday night, when the Lake Cowichan Kinsmen Club held their gala "Klondike Nite."

Neill McElroy was winner of the whisker contest.

The men had grown whiskers for the event while the women dug up an assorted array of gay '90's costumes, to give a touch of authenticity to the proceedings. The local barber found himself opening shop the following morning to de-whisker half the community.

Proceeds amounted to $300 which will be used for sports and other equipment for the young people of the area. The Lake Cowichan Kinsmen Club began its activities two years ago and in thattime has sponsored the in that time has sponsored the and contributed to the school library and playground equipment.

Cowichan Seeks Assessment Change

DUNCAN — A speed-up in equalizing assessment throughout the district was urged by the board of trustees of Cowichan School District No. 65, who stated at a recent meeting that inequalities of assessment were causing trustees much difficulty in preparing the ground for submission of a by-law for a new high school.

The meeting heard a delegation representing citizens of Cobble Hill, who have been opposing inclusion of their area in Cowichan School District No. 65, present their views.

Answering a query of the B.C. Teachers' Association as to the board's views on the question of compulsory membership for all teachers in the Teachers' Federation, the board stated they opposed such legislation. They felt it was not in the best interests of education. They will inform members for Cowichan Newcastle and Esquimalt of their stand.

A committee was authorized to negotiate for a school site at Mill Bay. It was also decided to reopen Sylvania School after Easter.

F. C. Stewart, Vancouver engineer, has been engaged to advise the board with regard to drainage and sewage problems in connection with the new high school.

School Estimates Declared Unfair At Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — Alberni School District No. 70 estimates for 1947 "were grossly unfair to the citizens and taxpayers of Port Alberni," Mayor W. C. Hamilton stated at a council meeting here.

Mayor Hamilton who is president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, criticized the stand of the provincial department of education and the implementation of the Cameron Report.

The council passed a motion, which in effect laid the whole problem in the lap of the departments of municipal affairs and education.

"Let them fight it out," said Mayor Hamilton.

At a recent meeting, the council rejected school board estimates which call for an increase of $23,000 over last year for Port Alberni, part of the school district.

Show Dissatisfaction With Health Unit

PORT ALBERNI — Dissatisfaction of the Port Alberni city council, with the manner in which Central Vancouver Island Health Units is carrying on its duties, will be expressed in a letter to the unit at Nanaimo, directed by Dr. J. A. Taylor.

Dr. Taylor had stated in a letter that it was not possible to give an affidavit singling out a certain herd responsible for the spread of undulant fever, several cases of which have occurred here.

Mayor W. C. Hamilton stated: "Dr. Taylor has not the courage of his convictions. Let us forget it and let the public be the judge."

"But," remarked Ald. L. Jordon, "people are still getting undulant fever."

G. M. Campbell, city solicitor, explained all that was required of Dr. Taylor was an affidavit to be referred to a court. "The health unit decided of its own without reference to a court that the undulant fever situation here is not a public nuisance," Mr Campbell declared.

Morals Slumping Says Church Leader

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, D.D., secretary of the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada, said in an address today at the board's annual meeting that "Canada has slumped morally" although it "has not reached its lowest point."

He said the gravity of the moral crisis was revealed in such trends as increases in illegitimate births, abortions, divorces, venereal diseases and sales of contraceptives. All these rates in Canada were at new record highs. So also were beverage alcohol sales and arrests for drunkenness.

Describing the condition of the United Church of Canada, he said:

"Recruits for the ministry are not numerous. In many areas the rural church is weaker. Patches of paganism are spreading. The unchurched are not being found in large numbers and compelled to come into the fellowship. And our moral witness in temperance is spotty and hesitant; and we have little heart for close-in fighting in the arena of tough moral issues."

Rheumatic and Arthritic Pains, Neuritis, Sciatica and Lumbago

In acute arthritic cases where sufferers have been bed-ridden for several years, and in many cases over 70 years of age, have been so completely relieved of the toxic poisoning given off by the streptococci germs as to be completely relieved of pain and a great deal of freedom of their joints restored. When this immunity is obtained to this extent it can be regarded as permanent, if periodic doses are maintained, such as six drops of Lantigen "C" in water, say once weekly, and on the signs of the complaint returning the doses should be maintained daily, which would almost invariably disappear again in less than five or six days.

HONEST CANADIANS

IN A STATEMENT AT OTTAWA AT the beginning of this week, Mr. Donald Gordon, who has just resigned his position as chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, gave emphatic voice to the view that there were no very serious black market operations in Canada.

This able official of the public service who—with his associates—has rendered an excellent account of himself during the last five and a half years knows whereof he speaks. Even those Canadians who at times have been extremely vocal in their opposition to any form of control will admit that without the restrictions of which Mr. Gordon was the author, the consumers of this country would have had to pay a great deal more for ordinary commodities—those commodities the cost of which means the difference between traditional comfort and austerity living for the many whose incomes were not increased by the wartime boom.

In other words, as Mr. Gordon made it abundantly clear, the great majority of the Canadian people are basically honest. With this conviction in the back of his mind, the chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board found no difficulty in ascribing the success of his policy—entrusted to him by Parliament to administer—to the wholesome and wholehearted co-operation of the average Canadian citizen.

RUSSIAN RHETORIC

ONE OF THE OBJECTIONS TO SUCH nations as Canada participating in the drafting of the peace treaties for Germany and Austria comes from Deputy Foreign Commissar Vishinsky of the Soviet Union. But when he says that "more blood flowed in Russia during the Second World War than there is water in the rivers of Canada", he was indulging in platitudinous rhetoric which has nothing to do with the right of Canada to state her case.

Neither Marshal Stalin, Foreign Commissar Molotov, nor any of the spokesmen of the Kremlin have had anything to say about the attitude of mind which the last of the Hohenzollerns and the former Austrian corporal made public in the summer of 1914 and in the summer of 1939, respectively. The Kaiser, banking upon the apathy of the British people and the disinterestedness of the peoples of the Britannic family, felt quite convinced in his own mind that as soon as the first shot was fired in Europe the British Empire—as then constituted—would promptly disintegrate. The story of His erstwhile Imperial Majesty has gone down on the record of Teuton aspiration. And was it not the late and unlamented Joachim von Ribbentrop who succeeded in convincing the head of the Nazi oligarchy that a second German attempt at world domination would witness the prompt break-up of a collection of nations bound together by such a tenuous legal document as the Statute of Westminster?

The point at issue, however, is Mr. Vishinsky's unwillingness to recognize the important part which Canada, as the senior overseas Dominion of the British Commonwealth, played in frustrating the designs of the last of the Hohenzollerns and the first of the modern Teuton dictators. This in itself, apart from the vast material contributions which Canada and her sister Dominions of the British Commonwealth made to victory over the tyrant, should be sufficient to persuade the spokesmen of the Soviet Union that the "middle" and smaller nations of the free world have the right to a voice in the determination of the terms that one day will be presented to Germany and Austria in the form of binding peace treaties.

WE LIVE AND 'LEARN'

ONE OF THIS MORNING'S EARLY news broadcasts from the United States—Hollywood to be exact—might help to explain why so many people in the neighboring republic know so little about the manner in which the self-governing nations of the British Commonwealth conduct their affairs. The particular radio program to which we refer is sponsored by the manufacturer of an allegedly tasty confection with miracle-working properties calculated to do almost everything from correcting curvature of the spine to growing hair on billiard balls. Sandwiched between two particularly nauseating commercial blurbs, however, was the newscaster's announcement that Viscount Mountbatten had left today to take up his new assignment in New Delhi with the important task of trying to keep India within the British Empire. This "bright" piece of information was left suspended in the ether for listeners to make what they liked of it.

The intelligent American who is familiar with the important evolutionary processes which have completely transformed the various states of the Britannic family in the political sense since the days of Queen Victoria, of course, requires no tutelage on the progress of history from the lollypop-sponsored purveyor of the morning news. But it is unfortunate, often more or less irritating, that millions of our good friends on the southern side of the 49th parallel still have the strange idea that Canadians pay their taxes to some imperial collecting agency within the sound of "Big Ben." One of these days, perhaps, the same language which serves two good neighbors in myriad useful ways will be put to work on a new history of these English-speaking peoples. Some performers on the airways are certainly in need of accurate political and other information about the British Commonwealth and Empire.

HIGHWAY RESPONSIBILITY

MONTHLY FIGURES ON BRITISH COlumbia's highway deaths and property loss are sufficient in themselves to emphasize the need for regulations to bring home to motorists their responsibilities. To what extent the Manitoba legislation aimed at that objective would meet requirements in this province can be a matter of opinion only at this stage, but discussion of the prairie system by members of the Legislature here will appeal to many as a step in the right direction.

As we have said before, no financial compensation can make good the loss of life entailed in a car accident. At best, monetary payment can only soften the economic blow which frequently falls on a family from which the bread-winner has been removed by death. What the imposition of laws enforcing financial responsibility can do, however, is to see that individuals suffering loss through injury or damage in highway mishaps are reimbursed for suffering and the material destruction of their property. The Manitoba system seems to provide a means of accomplishing this end and, by relieving drivers of their right to drive until satisfaction is given for accidents, it should impress on them a better understanding of their obligations.

The scheme does not, of course, eliminate death on the highway. It gives promise, nevertheless, of curbing recklessness to a substantial degree and of providing compensation to the victims of accidents. Those factors alone should dispose the British Columbia legislators to view the issue in a favorable light.

WAS IT A FLOP?

ACCORDING TO A VANCOUVER DISpatch yesterday, the so-called mass lobby which visited the Parliament Buildings this week was not regarded as a howling success by those who were responsible for its organization. It is not for us to speculate on the reason for this manifestation of disappointment. We who live in the capital city and were permitted to witness the parade of well-dressed and obviously well-nourished young citizens may be forgiven if we suggest that the welfare of all concerned might have been better served if the man-hours devoted to public display had been applied to the production of commodities needed by our own and other peoples.

Any discussion of this condition, of course, brings us back again to the main question: Do the workers of British Columbia, organized or unorganized, realize that only as this province is able to take its place in the export field will its future economy be determined. For it must be understood by all that only by the development—and it will have to be considerable development—of our external trade will the people of British Columbia be able to face their economic future with confidence.

As we have argued in these columns on numerous occasions, therefore, the paramount duty of the influential leaders of labor and management is to get together around a conference table and discuss, face to face, what can and should be done in the interests of a million people whose sole object and desire is the progressive and profitable development of the Province of British Columbia. There is obviously no room in this part of Canada for an operative philosophy which, reduced to its common denominator, means that you shall do this or that—or else!

NO MOON TRANSPORT YET

SO MANY FANTASIES HAVE BEEN translated into actualities by science in the relatively short history of mankind that there is little inclination today to scoff at the possibilities of future interplanetary travel. Some months ago we were advised of one enterprising American's plans for a round trip to the moon. More recently we have heard discussed the concept of global defence from planetary outposts. We do not feel competent to judge the feasibility of such suggestions. They are, perhaps, no more outlandish than was the earlier radical belief held by some unorthodox thinkers of the 15th Century that the earth was round and not flat.

We do, however, find a measure of reassuring stability in current statements in the United States Ordnance Journal which indicate that "any flights to the moon or Mars are so far in the future that we give them no study or attention." This, of course, may be a negative approach to the wonders of tomorrow. But it furnishes promise of an opportunity to catch up with the miracles that have already been achieved and with which the spirit of man seems too immature at present to deal. None wishes to curb the constructive flight of science. But it does appear more imperative now to develop ethics to a point where new physical discoveries do not pose such violent threats of extermination as they do today. And we wonder, incidentally—and at the risk of being considered parochial—what the moon has to offer that is lacking on Vancouver Island in the way of amenities to graceful living.

DISCRIMINATION IS BARRED

THE WORLD TRADE CHARTER, which seeks to establish the laws of fair international commerce, is based on two main assumptions: (1) That trade barriers of all sorts should be reduced and (2) that nations should not discriminate in their trade by favoring one customer or supplier as against another.

The signatories of the charter, in its present tentative form, would bind themselves to negotiate for the removal of trade barriers, including tariffs and various secret protective devices of national customs laws. Actually, these negotiations will begin among the chief trading nations in Geneva this spring and later, if this conference succeeds, would be extended to all nations signing the charter.

BUT AS SOON as the drafters of the charter proposed a general reduction of trade barriers and the elimination of all discriminatory trade policies, they collided with the British preference system and other smaller systems of the same sort which, of course, are entirely discriminatory in character.

In pure theory, to be consistent, the charter would have to denounce all tariff preferences but in practical politics this was seen to be impossible at present. Therefore, while each signatory agrees to grant all other signatories unconditional most-favored-nation treatment—that is, to eliminate all discrimination—yet existing preferences of "long standing" are exempted from this prohibition for the time being. The exemption is designed chiefly to cover the British preference system and the preference arrangements between the United States and Cuba.

HOWEVER, all nations involved in the exempted preferences bind themselves to negotiate for the reduction or removal of such preferences as rapidly as possible. If any signatory asks another to negotiate for the reduction of its preferential tariffs or its general tariffs, this request cannot be rejected. A nation cannot refuse to negotiate on the ground that it is bound to maintain certain tariffs by former international commitments like the British preference, for example. However, no nation is required to modify such commitments—only to negotiate on their modification. When a nation agrees to reduce a tariff and this reduction is given to all nations under the most-favored-nation principle, then the margin of preference, if any, will automatically be reduced.

Up to this point the reduction in tariffs and the gradual reduction and elimination of preferences appear as a purely voluntary proposal, but the charter contains some measure of enforcement. Thus, if a nation refuses to negotiate for reduced tariffs with another, or refuses to act within the spirit of the charter in negotiating reduced tariffs, it may be haled before the International Trade Organization. If it is found guilty, the benefits of tariff reductions granted by other nations may be withheld from it.

EVERY NATION must give "sympathetic consideration" to the complaint of any other nation concerning its tariffs, customs regulations and formalities, quantitative and exchange regulations, state trading operations, sanitary laws and generally all matters affecting trade. If it is alleged that such policies violate the charter, the accused nation must consider steps to alter them. Should it refuse to do so, the complaint will go to the Trade Organization which can make friendly recommendations to the accused nation. If such recommendations are refused, the organization may punish the offender by excluding it from the trade concessions already granted to it by other nations.

From all this it will be seen that signatories accept very wide obligations to reduce trade barriers and to avoid discrimination, but safeguards are provided to protect them in unforeseen circumstances. Thus if, as a result of a tariff reduction, a product is imported so largely into a country as to "threaten serious injury" to domestic producers, the new tariff may be withdrawn, even without advance notice, provided the Trade Organization is immediately informed of the facts and provided also that a nation affected by this withdrawal may institute counteraction of a reasonable sort.

IT HAS TO BE understood that these arrangements touch only the enforcement of the charter, the law of the Trade Organization. They cannot allow violations of actual tariff treaties negotiated between two states. Such treaties are binding according to their actual provisions, but the objective of the Trade Organization will be to promote treaties that accord with its general rules of conduct. For example, the United States apparently proposes to negotiate all tariff treaties this year with an escape clause included in them by which a reduced tariff may be raised if it damages an American industry. This clause would seem to fall within the general intent of the charter as outlined above.

The plan to reduce trade barriers and preferences immediately touch such subjects as export subsidies and quantitative restrictions. These will be discussed in another article.

(The second of a series)

(Copyright by the Winnipeg Free Press)

What we want is a free and unrestricted interchange of news among nations. We expected much more of this, with the abolition of many censorships at the end of the war, than has actually come to pass. But we'll have to keep on fighting for it.—Hugh Baillie, president United Press.

Oh, I Beg Your Pardon

A Golden Opportunity

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IN ADDITION to its vague globalism, which has already caused much misunderstanding in many parts of the world, a most serious defect of President Truman's message was the treatment accorded the United Nations. This defect can be corrected. It urgently needs to be corrected. Otherwise the American intervention will be highly vulnerable to criticism at home and abroad, and the American task will be more difficult than it needs to be.

The treatment of U.N. has been explained, for example by Senator Vandenberg, on the ground that while "we must keep faith with the pledges to the Charter," it is "not practical at the immediate moment" to proceed "within the United Nations" because U.N. has no relief funds—and it has not yet concluded agreements with member nations for military support.

OBLIGATION

Now it is quite true that U.N. has neither the money nor the power to act. Almost certainly it is also true that if U.N. had the money and the power the Soviet Union would veto action by the U.N. But that does not release the United States from her pledges under the Charter. Because the U.N. is unable to act collectively, it does not follow that the U.S. has the right to act unilaterally, or even that if she has the right, that it is wise to exercise it.

The heart of the United Nations Charter and the soul of the whole undertaking is the covenant to consult with the other members, particularly the permanent members of the Security Council, when an issue of international security and peace is raised. Indisputably such an issue is raised here: The President said so in his message. The fact that the U.N. is not capable of acting swiftly, effectively, or even of acting at all, does not relieve the United States of the obligation to consult the United Nations before she acts.

SPIRIT SACRIFICED

It is possible, I realize, to argue that the letter of the Charter, if Article 106 is strictly and narrowly construed, does not oblige the U.S. in this specific case to "consult with one another" with "a view to such joint action on behalf of the organization as may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security."

It could be argued that the Greek government has invited the U.S. to intervene, that the exact language of Article 106 does not fit this case exactly, but such argument will be sacrificing the spirit to the letter. For the obligation to consult is the paramount principle of United Nations, and the United States does not have the right, nor is it in her interest, to fail to uphold that prinicple.

It was—to put it conservatively—an oversight to have discussed proposed American action before the President announced it to the world only with the British government, and not also with the French, the Chinese and the Russian. That, however, is water over the dam, and the mistake can be repaired. The policy is not yet adopted. The President has not yet acted. He is still only asking Congress for authority to act. Before he can act, the whole proposal will be examined publicly by the committees and it will then be debated in Congress.

EXPLANATION

If the policy can be explained to Congress, and therefore to the world, it can also be explained to the United Nations. A full explanation, and a willingness to consider objections, would meet the obligation to consult. There are many ways of doing this, and any one of them, or all, would relieve the United States of the suspicion that she is evading her obligations. She could inform the Secretary-General of the United Nations about her proposals, and invite him to take notice of the explanations which will be offered to Congress. Mr. Austin could go before the Security Council and explain the proposals, not waiting until Mr. Gromyko attacks them. The United States could notify the United Nations that she shall not only explain what she intends to do and why, but also that she will report to them at regular intervals what has been done and why. The U.S. could, moreover, invite the leading interested nations to send official observers to Greece to see for themselves what is being done.

GREAT ADVANTAGE

The great advantage of some such action is that it would at once rehabilitate the moral authority of the United Nations and would not interfere with the efficiency of American action since the whole intervention must, because Congress is a party to it, be conducted without secrecy and in full public view.

But there are many other advantages of acting, as Senator Vandenberg puts it, "within the United Nations" — even though not acting through United Nations. This is the best way to answer the charge that Americans are doing what they have so often charged others, particularly the Russians, with doing—that they are acting unilaterally and for the purpose of domination and imperial arrrandizement.

Moreover, by going into Greece, the United States will set up right on the frontier of the Soviet orbit, a demonstration of how Americans think a weak country, which is strategically important, should be treated by a great power. The U.S. must make the demonstration attractive as well as convincing. She must show not only that she has money and military strength and technical skill but also that she is the willing and eager servant of an international order, within which small nations can obtain assistance and protection without sacrificing their independence or their self respect.

AGGRAVATED DIFFICULTIES

Not to act within the United Nations, and in accord with a broad affirmation of the spirit of the Charter, would be to aggravate American difficulties and to miss a golden opportunity. Let it not be said of the U.S.

"Then rushed to meet the insulting foe. They took the spear, but left the shield."

For if the spear is American money, prestige and power, the shield is American readiness to be always faithful to the spirit of her pledges to mankind.

'Freedom And Design'

FRANK OWEN, a former protege of David Lloyd George, now editor of the London Daily Mail, who has denounced the Tories as "less a party of wicked old Lords than of timid old ladies" has, according to Adelphi in London Calling, adopted political alignment in England called the Augustans. This movement has as its objective the building up of a new opposition party in the United Kingdom. It is convinced that the present opposition does not fill the bill, and has come into the open with a detailed economic policy under the head of "Freedom and Design." This carries a hundred well-known signatures of Conservatives, Liberals and Independents.

REFORMISTS

Nearly all the Tory Reform M.P.'s have signed. Peter Thorneycroft (Monmouth) a junior minister in the National Government is there and Quentin Hogg, (Oxford) son of a Tory Lord Chancellor. The independent M.P. for Ormskirk in the last parliament, Commander Stephen King Hall who issues a widely-read newspaper, is among the signatories. Lt.-Gen. Martell, head of the Wartime Tank Mission to Russia figures as a Conservative along with Air Vice-Marshall Bennett, the leader of the R.A.F. Pathfinder Group, and Sir Hubert Young, a companion of Lawrence of Arabia who sign as Liberals.

There are 27 members of parliament among the hundred-odd signatories. Already an organization has sprung into being to propagandize for "Freedom and Design," and has its branches in every county. They are called the Augustans and will sponsor further policies from the authors of the manifesto. They aim to be a parallel in the 20th century to the Fabians in the 19th. But it took the Fabians 60 years to see their work bear fruit in an overall Socialist majority; and the non-Socialists in Britain will either expect the Augustans to move much faster than that, or return to the official Conservatives, which at the moment they show not the slightest sign of doing.

Frank Owen before his elevation to the editorial chair was assistant editor and author of the Mail's "Good Morning" column. He called the Labor government's policy regarding coal as "All scuttle and no coal." He spent most of his time during the war in the South East Asia Command where he edited the soldier paper Seac with a combined staff of British and Americans. He and the famous cartoonist David Low

Lord Beaverbrook's paper the Standard from a circulation of 100,000 to 600,000 in a very brief period before the war. He became an M.P. at the age of 23, the youngest man to do so since William Pitt. When he lost his seat he went to Moscow as representative of the London News Chronicle.

HELPING INDUSTRY

Prince Rupert News

When new industries come to a place usually some concessions are asked from the community but the new celanese pulp mill project for Port Edward which has been announced appears to involve nothing like that. However, there are things that we can and will be able to do to assist the project. In addition to adjusting business to take care of the new demands, accommodation will have to be provided for the new population.

TO GENERAL GOOD

Montreal Star

For more than a quarter century, Canadian life insurance companies have carried on jointly a campaign of education in the service life insurance coverage can perform. This general message, presented side by side with individual companies' advertisements of their particular facilities, must be acknowledged as contributing in a large way to the broad public acceptance in Canada of the value of life insurance. In bad and good times alike, sales continue to grow, and the savings thus accumulated cushion the shocks of adversity for countless families daily.

Reliance on the daily newspaper to carry the great part of this message to the public is significant in itself of the role of the press today. It reaches every community with regularity, assuring the continuity that is the best guarantee of success in any effort to influence public opinion.

In its effort to make itself comprehensible to the whole public, life insurance has set an example worth consideration by business generally. Full and accurate knowledge makes for good will.

British View

U.K. Information Service

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S call to Congress is authoritatively welcomed in London as evidencing the determination of the U.S.A. to accept the full responsibilities dictated by and commensurate with the U.S.A.'s unsurpassed capacity to contribute to the maintenance of peace.

President Truman makes it clear that the motives of the proposed economic and financial aid to Greece and Turkey are the motive for which the United Nations is designed, namely "to make possible lasting freedom and independence for all its members."

When the President based the policy he advocates on the principles of free institutions, representative governments, free elections and freedom from political oppression, he postulates premises of policy which the United Kingdom government has been pursuing in dealing with the whole gamut of difficult problems which have arrived in Europe and Asia since the war. Specifically the integrity and independence of Greece and Turkey, conditioned by their political stability and economic resilience, are constant tenets of Britain's political doctrine.

The U.S. government will share its new responsibilities in the interests of world peace with the United Kingdom government, which has no wish to recede from its own share of responsibility in Greece, Turkey or elsewhere. What has happened is that present appeals from Greece and Turkey for assistance surpass in urgency and extent Britain's capacity to meet them alone, as they exceed all past estimates of what Greek and Turkish needs would be.

The assistance which President Truman asks for Greece, including the loan of American civilian and military personnel, does not affect United Kingdom plans for a substantial further reduction of United Kingdom forces in Greece by the end of March and the withdrawal of the remainder as soon as practicable. From one point of view, indeed, the practicable withdrawal date might be drawn nearer, namely if American assistance to Greece brought an earlier restoration of order and stability.

Compulsory Vote, Japanese Franchise Lose First Round

Party lines were severed, opinions were reversed and almost every facet of the problem was discussed Wednesday night by the B.C. Legislature during a full-dress debate on the provisions British Columbia's new election act should include.

Taking part in the three-hour night sitting discussion, precipitated by referring the legislative's election committee report to committee of the whole House, were 19 members, including some of the government and opposition strongest debaters, but excluding the 10-man cabinet. The main difference of opinion shaped up on compulsory voting and perpetual registration with the question of whether or not Japanese should be permitted to vote taking second place.

The box score of the debate is:

Number of speakers, 19.

Endorsing compulsory voting, seven.

Opposing compulsory voting, nine.

Endorsing vote for Japanese, three.

Opposing votes for Japanese, five.

The debate, as well as smashing party lines, found at least three reversals of opinion on compulsory voting.

Both Tom King, Coalition, Columbia, and D. C. Brown, Coalition, Vancouver-Burrard, who had signed the committee's report, which recommended compulsory voting, demanded the right to change their minds. Both claimed their constiutents were so strongly opposed to compulsory voting they could no longer support it.

Dr. J. J. Laird, Coalition, Similkameen, who had previously in the House endorsed compulsory voting, said he had not said what he meant to say.

RECOMMENDS HOIST

While W. T. Straith, Coalition, Victoria, signed the committee report, he thought the province might not be ready for compulsory voting at the present time. He recommended this proposal be hoisted for the time being.

The debate will be continued.

Those endorsing compulsory voting were: R. H. Carson, Opposition Leader Harold E. Winch, Mr. Straith, Mrs. Nancy Hodges, Coalition, Victoria; A. J. Turner, C.C.F., Vancouver-East; J. H. Corsbie, C.C.F., Peace River, and Herbert Gargrave, C.C.F., Mackenzie.

Those opposing the compulsory vote recommendation were: J. H. Cates, North Vancouver; Dr. J. J. Laird, Similkameen; A. B. Richie, Salmon Arm; H. J. Welch, Comox; A. R. MacDougall, Vancouver-Point Grey; W. J. Johnson, Revelstoke; Mrs. T. J. Rolston, Vancouver-Point Grey; Mr. Brown and Mr. King, Columbia. All are Coalitionists.

For the most part the C.C.F. members backed enfranchising the Japanese, but a notable exception was that of Mr. Straith.

Four members, including Mr. Cates, E. F. Rowland, C.C.F., Omenica, Mr. Turner and Mr. Johnson believed some provision should be made for the native Indians to vote.

Mr. Carson explained the background of the committee's report, noting the committee had worked 12 months on the problem of election reform and had sent out 4,000 questionnaires. The plummetting of electors exercising the franchise in the 1945 provincial general election to 65 per cent of the total had been among the conditions leading to setting up the committee. Mr. Carson said it was notable the smallest percentages of those entitled to vote using the polls were in the urban ridings.

He reported also strong representations had been made by minority groups for enfranchisement.

"Your committee, after considering the matter very closely, came to the conclusion," he said, "that if we wish to perpetuate the present system of democracy as we know it, we must require every citizen to carry out the franchise."

Opposition Leader Winch warned the committee report represented opinions of all members and all parties.

"I regret exceedingly that the election committee was not able to bring in an election act as recommendation for this House for I feel had the committee been able to bring in a completely new act perhaps there would not have been the misunderstanding as when the report was made.

"I am convinced that it was because of intimations of the government that we were not able to bring in an act."

WANTS VOTES FOR JAPANESE

Mr. Winch made a strong plea for extension of the franchise to Japanese, saying anyone who disagreed with him was not living up to the principles of Christianity, British justice and democracy.

The compulsory voting clauses he described as merely an extension of the principle of licensing persons to drive cars or buy liquor.

Mr. Straith said he believed compulsory voting would be acceptable to the province when the electors were better informed. At the present time he believed compulsory voting might do more harm than good.

Strongest opposition to the extension of the vote to the Japanese was expressed by Dr. Laird and A. C. Hope, Coalition, Delta.

Dr. Laird said he believed the war was too close to permit Japanese to vote.

Recalling 101 Japanese fishing vessels had displayed the Japanese flag 10 years ago when a Japanese prince and princess were visiting British Columbia, Mr. Hope said:

"I don't think you can ever be a good British Columbian if you're ashamed of the Union Jack."

Noting less Japanese were registered during the 1941 census than during the 1931 census, yet the division of vital statistics showed there had been a natural increase of more than 4,000 during that period, Mr. Hope said it was most likely a similar number had gone to Japan.

Mrs. Hodges suggested the rights of citizens in the past had been over-emphasized, while the responsibilities and duties of citizens had been underplayed. While citizenship had been impressed on school students for years, still citizens did not get out to vote in sufficient numbers, she said.

Mr. Ritchie, opposing compulsory voting, thought some provision should be made for members of the armed forces outside of the province to vote.

Mr. Turner added that compulsory voting had first been introduced in Switzerland in 1835 and 18 countries now were using it. He warned British Columbia citizens should not be wet-nursed.

Mr. Welch said: "I don't believe it is possible to compel responsibility and to compel citizenship. . . . I do not believe we can force anybody to go to vote."

Said Mr. MacDougall: "You can make a man go to the polls but you can't make 'him vote." He suggested the government, if adopting compulsory voting, would be playing into the C.C.F.

Opposing Mrs. Hodges he contended the franchise would not be free if voting were compulsory.

John McInnis, C.C.F., Fort George, commended Mrs. Hodges for her stand on compulsory voting, but warned there should be severe penalties for improper registration if no provision were made for an affidavit to have a name put on the voters' list.

Pre-Enlistment Pay For Army Recruits

Applicants for enlistment in the Canadian army, active force, who are rejected will be paid for any time they spend at a military depot waiting to hear the result of their application, army headquarters has announced.

Made from the cream of selected Canadian wheat crops, Swans Down is milled by an exclusive "Controlled Milling" process, and sifted again and again through silk, until superbly even and 27 times as fine as ordinary flour. For parties, for any day — you'll bake a better cake with Swans Down.

CHERRY ANGEL CAKE

1 cup sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
1 cup egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1¼ cups sifted granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract
⅓ cup finely chopped maraschino cherries

Sift flour once, measure; sift four times. Beat whites and salt until foamy throughout; sift in cream of tartar and beat stiff but not dry. Fold in sugar carefully, 2 tablespoons at a time. Fold in flavoring. Sift and fold in flour, a small amount at a time. Pour ⅓ of batter into ungreased angel cake pan; sprinkle with half the cherries. Add another ⅓ of batter, remaining cherries, then remaining batter. Run knife through from top to bottom of pan, to mix cherries throughout. Bake in slow oven (275°F.) 30 minutes; raise heat to 325° and bake about 30 minutes longer. Invert on rack until cold. May be covered with chocolate icing.

SILENT GLOW OIL BURNERS are back again in British Columbia!

That's good news for British Columbians, as many letters we receive testify. Here's a typical one, dated Jan. 21, 1947 (name of correspondent on request):

"I installed burner C98089 in my kitchen range on October 12, 1933 and it has been a comfort and household blessing ever since. Out on the Pacific Coast our winters are very mild and most of the winter we can get by with one burner turned low sufficient to provide breakfast comfort in addition to a tank of hot water and kettle boiling when we get up in the morning. After thirteen years continuous use the two sets of shells are still in good condition.

Silent Glow is easy on oil — gives faster, easier, cleaner heat in your range. It was the first range burner to be approved by National Research Council, Ottawa — 1933. Approved in 1946 by Canadian Standards Association, National Research Bldg., Ottawa.

Great Women Lauded By Mrs. Alfred Watt

Speaking at a Women's Canadian Club meeting Tuesday afternoon, in the Empress Hotel, Mrs. Alfred Watt, O.B.E., praised the work of outstanding women in different countries, who have striven to better the lot of their fellow countrymen.

"These are only a few of the many great women," she said, "who have learned how to plan and work with others and to cooperate for the common good.

"They have not been afraid to experiment. They are steadfast and loyal to an ideal and they possess moral courage of a high degree."

Special tribute was paid to women of Britain who, by their cheerful courage and quiet determination through difficult days, have proven themselves true guardians of those ideals which contribute to a peaceful and free world.

During the war, French women were called to the collosal task, of feeding their country, Mrs. Watt said. With the children, they seeded and cultivated and harvested the crops often without the help of machinery.

As a humanitarian, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was outstanding among great American women, Mrs. Watt told her audience.

Country women in all parts of the world, have played a great part in the last few years, not only as great producers of goods, but as morale builders in rural communities, Mrs. Watt reminded her audience. Then she spoke of the great meeting planned for September of this year in Holland, when representatives of the Associated Countrywomen of the World of which she is president, meet for the first time since before the war.

Mrs. Kenneth C. Drury presided, and thanked the speaker following her address. Mrs. James Price was guest soloist.

Bonnie Leveridge Married In White

A gown of white sheer brocaded nylon styled with sweetheart neckline, long fitted bodice, full skirt and long pointed sleeves was worn by Bonnie R. Leveridge as she entered Centennial United Church with her father, Monday, at 8, to become the bride of PO. Edward George Shepperd, R.C.N., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Shepperd, Shellmouth, Man.

The daughter of G. V. Leveridge, 3135 Balfour Avenue, and the late Mrs. Leveridge, chose a chapel veil with coronet of white flowers and powder-puff bouquet of red roses, gardenias and carnations to complete her costume. Her only jewelry was a pendant.

Miss Lenore Waring, attending the bride, chose a floor-length gown of pink angel silk, with small floral pattern. She wore a halo headdress of triple blue net with matching gloves, and carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white carnations. A gold locket, gift of the bride, complemented her costume.

Dennis Patrick stood with the groom as best man, and PO. William Haskins, R.C.N., and PO. Houghton, R.C.N., acted as ushers.

Rev. W. R. Ashford read the service.

In Step With Style

Key Coat Style — For spring and summer the abbreviated topper again appears high on the list. The shortie that teams with varying daytime dress and suit lengths, tops short or long dinner gowns and appropriately lines up with sports slacks. Armholes for one of these hard-working pastel, neutral or white coats should be just deep enough to fit comfortably over padded suit jacket shoulders.

Capeable—Increasing in number as the spring and summer showings progress, are the capedresses. Their undeniable complement to liberated skirt fullness registers in many print and pastel models. If the skirt is accordion pleated, the cape or capelet repeats the pleating and falls from an epaulet band from neck to shoulder tip.

Bertha Collars—Appearing just in time to carry tired, end-of-season dresses over that exasperating gap between winter and spring are bertha collars of crisp pique or fine Swiss embroidery in pink, blue or white.

Wardrobe Stretchers—Found among the new summer cottons are fitted basque jackets or cape-topped strapless dress. Supporting and abetting the bare shoulder trend this year is the clever working of wired bras and boned body support directly into well-fitted, molded bodices. Cover-up jacket or cape gives neat propriety for town wear, and the coolness latent in the minimum dressing.

Spring Color—Forecast some months ago as the "coming" color for spring, pink now fulfills its prophetic role in almost every collection of co-ordinated ensembles. Latest preview of the season ahead was at the Waldorf-Astoria recently when ready-to-wear dresses, suits, coats and hats for all ages contained variations of the pink theme.

Popular Accessories—Growing popularity of stripes, especially in crisp taffeta, gives rise to the possibilities of apron or draped peplums, hand-stitched ascot or dickeys with matching glove cuffs that can be snapped onto fabric shorties, back-tying scarfs for this season's pampered padre sailor hats or poncho type blouses.

Smart Variation—Much has been said about neckline variations being the most effective means of changing the appearance of a dress, but for added smartness many favor the perky cuff sets that can be stitched or pinned to pocket edges at hip or bust line.

RED ROSE KETA SALMON

High in Food value Low in Cost...

Without doubt, "RED ROSE" Keta is today's bargain in Canned Salmon.

This popular Pacific Coast Salmon, while lighter in color and somewhat larger in flake, is nevertheless equal in food value to more expensive salmons. It is delicious when used in sandwiches and cooked dishes such as fish cakes, souffles and hot dinners.

Because all Salmon is under government allocation, the supply of Red Rose Keta is limited . . . watch for it at your grocer's.

B.C. Hot Springs Development For Health Spa Urged By Kenny

Lands and Forests Minister E. T. Kenney called on the Canadian National Railways Wednesday in the B.C. Legislature to develop the mineral springs at Lakelse, near Terrace, as a health spa.

Mr. Kenney said the development should be undertaken on a major scale as planned before by a European group which proposed to invest $2,000,000. The springs, said the minister, were among the largest of this continent.

Not only would the springs attract large numbers of tourists but even larger numbers of travelers seeking cures for malaises from its mineral waters, the minister said, adding the springs would heat a hotel and greenhouses without fuel. Mr. Kenney suggested the C.N.R., had it followed a policy of developing the country it served, would have developed Lakelse 35 years ago.

Opposition Leader Harold E. Winch had started the debate rolling with the statement that B.C. could be made the health spa of North America with the development of its mineral and other spring resources, which, he noted, like the tourist resources, were continuous assets. He predicted a properly developed health resort industry could become a billion dollar industry, employing thousands.

Development of mineral springs should be done by the government, not left to "private racketeering," he said.

Ease Restrictions On Alaska Highway

An arrangement now is being made with the Lands Department for the increase of free traffic on the Alaska Highway, Works Minister E. C. Carson told the B.C. Legislature Wednesday.

He answered criticism by Harold E. Winch, C.C.F., Opposition Leader, who claimed there was great difficulty for a B.C. citizen to travel on the highway although some 200 miles of it lay within the province.

Travelers on the highway were required to have permits to satisfy authorities they were properly equipped to make this journey on which there were few provisions made for travelers, the minister said.

Foresters Quit Jobs For Higher Pay

Men were leaving the B.C. Forest Service to get higher salaries of industry and not because their expressions of policy were suppressed, Lands and Forests Minister E. T. Kenney stated in the B.C. Legislature Wednesday.

In answering the charge by Harold E. Winch, C.C.F., Opposition Leader, Mr. Kenney said in the last two years only 17 men of the 500 in the forestry department had left.

The provincial government could not compete with industry in salary payments he claimed, adding that if industry could pay more for labor it could pay more for timber.

Safeguard Airports, Member Advises

Provincial government safeguarding of airports and airways in B.C. not looked after by the Dominion was advocated in the B.C. Legislature Wednesday by L. F. Stevenson, Coalition, Vancouver-Point Grey.

Beside safeguarding airports the government should aid extension of airport facilities, he said, suggesting the works department could do the work best.

Had such an authority existed, Gordon Head airport now might be serving Victoria, he said.

Discuss Film Bill

Attorney-General Gordon S. Wismer, in the B.C. Legislature Wednesday, adjourned the debate on a proposed amendment to the Motion Pictures Act, at the second reading.

The bill would provide for classifying films for all ages, for adults and children accompanied by adults, and for adults only.

Debate on the proposed Agrologists Act was adjourned by A. C. Hope, Coalition, Delta.

D.V.A. Extends Medical Service

The Department of Veterans' Affairs has eased the regulations governing free medical care for ex-servicemen and women attending schools and universities with the department's approval, it has been announced. Previously, a student veteran could obtain free medical care only during the periods he was actually attending classes. The new ruling provides medical treatment during the summer months when such veterans may be temporarily employed and not in receipt of D.V.A. allowances.

Deferred Payments Bill Introduced

A bill, which would give the Lieutenant-Governor in Council authority to regulate deferred-payment buying of consumer goods, was introduced in the B.C. Legislature Wednesday by C. W. Morrow, Coalition, North Okanagan.

The bill would give the authority only until the end of the first session of the B.C. Legislature in 1948, thus following the principle of the Consumer Credit Act of the last session of the Legislature which was never used.

A bill, introduced by Attorney-General Gordon S. Wismer, would give mutual fire insurance companies authority to insure up to $7,500. The companies now are limited to issuing policies for $5,000.

Urges Air Service For Government Use

A man with vast experience in flying in B.C., L. F. Stevenson, Coalition, Vancouver-Point Grey, told the B.C. Legislature Wednesday that rather than a single primitive Anson aircraft, the province should establish a respectable air service.

Mr. Stevenson suggested amphibious planes should be used and the service should be made available to all departments of the government.

Answering questions of Herbert Gargrave, C.C.F., Mackenzie, Works Minister E. C. Carson said the aircraft the works department had acquired would be stationed at Patricia Bay and used mainly to transport senior department engineers from Victoria to various works projects. He said the plane would also be made available to other departments when not needed by the works department.

Mr. Carson said the government had hired a former bush pilot with R.C.A.F. and test pilot experience to fly the aircraft.

"The thing I want to know is whether the department got the plane because they couldn't get over our roads," said Mr. Gargrave.

Complete Road Link

The provincial works department is hoping the Hart Highway, to link Prince George with the Peace River district, will be completed this year.

Works Minister E. C. Carson made this clear in the B.C. Legislature Wednesday in answering J. H. Corsbie, C.C.F., Peace River. Mr. Carson said no extension on the contract had been granted the contractor.

B.C. Mines, Given Fair Chance, Can Double Output, Says Minister

The average yearly output of British Columbia mines may be doubled if given a fair chance, Mines Minister R. C. MacDonald said Wednesday night in a radio address over CBC British Columbia stations.

Mr. MacDonald said he came to this conclusion after weighing the increased interest in B.C. mining at the present time, but he warned that B.C.'s mining industry will flourish through the interest and efforts of the citizens of the province and not by government paternalism.

"The mining industry in British Columbia is not as obvious, perhaps, as other industries because many of our mines are located in out-of-the-way places, but I want to tell you that our mining industry is very necessary for the prosperity of British Columbia," said Mr. MacDonald. "It is one of our major basic industries and I sometimes wonder if the people of this province realize to what extent we depend on it."

He noted that last year B.C. mines produced $70,250,000 in new wealth. Of this total it was estimated $25,000,000 was paid in wages and salaries, most of which was spent in the province. About $8,000,000 went for food, fuel and electricity and millions went for process supplies and machinery, largely within the province. Paid in dividends was $10,000,000 which was more widely distributed.

"This is all new wealth and creates a large volume of business," said Mr. MacDonald, adding that with a normal employment of 15,000 miners in B.C., about 150,000 persons in the province derive their livelihood from the mining industry.

"My department's function is to frame good laws and administer them fairly—and to supply sound technical information about our mineral resources, to assist in opening up new country with roads and trails, and to see that mining operations are carried on in such a way as to ensure the safety, health and welfare of the miners," he said.

"We have a great mining industry in British Columbia, and it is up to us to see that it is given a chance not only to live, but to grow. Everyone employed by it and everyone living in the province must take an interest in it.

"Government, management and labor must work together for a prosperous industry and a prosperous province."

Mr. MacDonald said it was the discovery of coal and gold and the coming of the miner that wrested British Columbia from the control of the fur trader and opened the country for settlement. He traced the mining and settlement trends of the history of the province.

From 1852 to 1945 British Columbia's mining industry contributed new wealth amounting to about $3,250,000,000 he said.

He said that with the growth of industrial development the use of industrial minerals should increase and a better balance between fuels and industrial minerals, largely consumed within the province, and metals which are largely exported, will be achieved.

While exhaustion of exportable materials may be some time away, there are still ample deposits to replace those now being mined.

Powerful Drama Showing At York

Moviegoers who saw Paramount's adventure thriller, "This Gun for Hire," open today at the York Theatre, were handed a jolt that's going to last them quite a long time. "This Gun for Hire" packs that many thrills!

Starring lissome Veronica Lake and handsome Robert Preston, "This Gun for Hire" features Laird Cregar and Alan Ladd, who deserves stardom on the basis of his dynamic characterization of a killer.

Old West Lives In Hopalong Film

The liberal use of the "wide-open spaces" in "Hopalong Rides Again," Clarence E. Mulford's western thriller featuring William Boyd, George Hayes, and Russell Hayden, opening today at the Atlas Theatre, proves that the "Old West" still exists—at least scenically.

Filmed in the High Sierras near Lone Pine, Cal., some 250 miles from Hollywood, the natural pictorial beauty of the setting forms a perfectly fitting background for one of the most dramatic and unforgettable western stories ever to reach the screen.

'Casanova Brown' Marital Comedy

"The discovery that a prospective bridegroom is a parent motivates the action in "Casanova Brown," the new picture starring Gary Cooper and Teresa Wright in what is said to be the comedy hit of the season at the Oak Bay Theatre.

The supporting cast features Frank Morgan as the lovable scalawag of a father who tries to discourage Casanova's desire to marry his daughter; Isobel Elsom as his domineering wife; Anita Louise as the girl who nearly manages to marry Casanova.

ROYAL THEATRE

Add to Jose Iturbi, Artur Rubinstein and Oscar Levant, giants of the piano keyboard who have lent their talents to the screen, the name of Richard Conte.

The popular young Twentieth Century-Fox star recently saved valuable time and disclosed his hidden talent during the filming of "13 Rue Madeleine," the Twentieth Century-Fox adventure hit, which is currently at the Royal Theatre.

Public Regulation Affords Check On Monopolistic Power—Grauer

People of Canada and the United States would do well to examine the assets of their respective countries built up under democratic free enterprise and realize that this continent has no place for collectivism as represented by socialism and communism, A. E. "Dal" Grauer, president of the B.C. Electric Railway Company, told members of the Rotary Club, in a luncheon address at the Empress Hotel today.

Entitling his remarks, "free enterprise and collectivism," Mr. Grauer said this represented the fundamental issue of the times.

In describing collectivism as a combination of socialism and communism, Mr. Grauer said he realized the two had important differences but they had in common the fundamental thought that they would both put total economic and political power into the hands of the State. They were thus at the opposite pole of free enterprise, he said.

The assets in Canada and United States under free enterprise were: 1, by far the highest standard of living in the world; 2, a continent-wide area free of historical suspicions and jealousies, free of war, free of class society, whether aristocratic or militaristic; and 3, a political system where the rights of the individual and of associations of individuals like trade unions were protected by the law, and where elections had always been free and the ballot secret, he said.

"The system that has brought us to where we are is democratic free enterprise," Mr. Grauer continued. "This system is very jealous of the rights of the individual which are protected by law and by the no lesser weight of social custom. It is a system which rests on the private ownership of property and believes that individual enterprise is the best economic motivation for both the individual and the social good; the whole being regulated as to the rules of the game, so to speak, by the state."

Socialism and communism, he said, had substantially the same objective but he pointed to three basic differences in their respective means of achieving this objective. These differences he cited as being: 1, the socialists advocate reaching socialism by the democratic means of the ballot, whereas the communists were prepared to do so by intrigue and revolution; 2, socialists stated they would compensate the present private owners of property, whereas the communists generally advocate expropriation without compensation, and 3, socialists believed they could achieve socialism with democratic safeguards, whereas communists bluntly stated that the transitional period would require a dictatorship.

"Both the socialists and communists dwell upon the shortcomings of the free enterprise system," he continued, "and, by implication at least, take the position that these shortcomings would not exist under their own systems. In short, they preach, directly or indirectly, a gospel of perfection. This is one of their great strengths because, although philosophers know that there is no greater illusion than that any system run by human beings can be perfect, it is nevertheless a great rallying cry for all those who are in any way discontented with their present lot."

None of the world's great religious leaders had preached moral perfection on earth yet today there were many collectivists preaching that they can have an economic and political heaven on earth, he said. He pointed out that the danger, should this preaching triumph, would be that as a result we would "all be plunged into an economic and political hell."

"We can make no easy assumption today, as so many of us tend to do, that because under the system that has become commonly known as democratic free enterprise we have for some time enjoyed the greatest measure of individual freedom during the course of history, this condition will automatically continue even under collectivist forms of economic and political organizations," Mr. Grauer said.

THE SAFEGUARD

"The safeguard for citizens against undue monopolistic power under democratic free enterprise is not public ownership but public regulation," Mr. Grauer said. "The business is left in private hands which keeps it out of the area of political pressures and compromises, but it is subject to the regulation of an independent commission set up under statute by the legislature."

In this way citizens got protection against possible abuses of monopolistic power and they also got the business efficiency of private enterprise, he said.

In closing, Mr. Grauer urged the supporters of free enterprise to be much more alert than they had been if they were to maintain the assets of free enterprise which he had described. The collectivists were very well organized, he said, and this meant that despite their small numbers they carried disproportionate weight in many trade unions and community organizations.

'Escape From Crime' Packed With Thrills

"Escape From Crime," the new Warner Bros. film which opens today at the Rio Theatre is packed with thrills and excitement, a few of the highlights being a murder, an execution and a bank robbery.

Richard Travis and Julie Bishop have the leading roles in the film; Travis as a paroled convict, and Miss Bishop as his wife whose loyalty through Travis' many ordeals is never questioned.

PLAZA THEATRE

Harry Segall, who wrote the original story of Charles R. Rogers' current hit, "Angel On My Shoulder," starring Paul Muni, Anne Baxter and Claude Rains, is also the author of the prize-winning film, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," in which Mr. Rains played the title role. Segall is also the author of many short stories, poems and stage plays. This highly entertaining picture is now showing at the Plaza Theatre.

CAPITOL THEATRE

William Demarest, who can be tough, truculent and hilariously funny all at one time, is a product of the tank town circuit. He has barnstormed as an amateur actor, professional boxer, and vaudeville headliner, and his experience as the last-named helped him immeasurably for his current role in "The Jolson Story," Columbia Pictures' technicolor cavalcade at the Capitol Theatre.

DOMINION THEATRE

The Samuel Goldwyn production of "Stella Dallas," with Barbara Stanwyck in the title role, attraction at the Dominion Theatre today, is a tense drama of a mother who sacrifices her own right to happiness for the sake of her daughter. It gives Miss Stanwyck the strongest role in her career and one which was coveted by every leading actress in Hollywood.

Co-starred with Miss Stanwyck is John Boles.

G. A. McDonald Made New President Of Esquimalt Legion

Boasting a membership in the neighborhood of 400, the Esquimalt Dockyard Branch of the Canadian Legion at its annual meeting Wednesday night elected Gordon A. McDonald as their president for the ensuing 12 months.

C. L. Madell was the choice for first vice-president, and N. O. Carpenter as second vice-president. Named as honorary president was Capt. A. C. M. Davy (E.), R.C.N. H. E. Cox was elected treasurer, and A. Smith was named sergeant-at-arms.

Committee chairmen follow: F. Chamberlain, finance, with N. P. Melynick and J. W. Gibbons as committee members; Aubrey Jones, publicity; J. C. Hermiston, ways and means; J. P. Jones, membership; D. M. Greg, pensions, and P. J. Hill, house.

A. Jones, V.C. Gilbert and H. W. Thomas were appointed delegates to the Victoria and District Zone Council of the Canadian Legion. D. Bevan was elected to the board of trustees.

Chief topic of discussion during the evening was the current reduction in service personnel on the Pacific coast in line with the Dominion Government's program to cut down expenditures in the postwar period.

The branch noted that as a result of the paring program, many ex-servicemen and women were being thrown out of employment and it was resolved to notify the commanding officer of the Pacific Command, the superintendent of the dockyard, the Industrial Relations Department and the Civil Service Commission that "we intend to keep a watchful eye on all appointments to the west coast permanent complement, and will contest with all the Legion strength at our command any attempt to make permanent any civil servant who cannot fulfill the requirements of active service preference, as defined by the Civil Service Act."

It was further resolved that as all naval civil service appointments in B.C. rest with the S.D.Y., the branch resolution was intended to apply to all civil service employment in the naval service within the province.

A resolution was passed expressing gratitude for the way the superintendents of the dockyard and the M.I.R. had received a delegation from the Legion on the matter of grading of hourly pay.

George V. Wilkinson, honorary secretary, was thanked for his work on behalf of the branch.

$20,000 In Pension Claims Secured For Veterans By Legion

In line with its program under the heading of "purpose and objects" the Canadian Legion continues its services on behalf of war veterans in securing pensions. It's work in this direction during February of this year netted World War II veterans and dependents a total of 125 pensions, involving $19,569 in retroactive payments.

On March 1 the Dominion Service Bureau of the legion had 4,000 claims on its files to deal with.

The legion has pledged itself "to secure adequate pensions, allowances, grants and war gratuities for ex-servicemen and women, their dependents, and the widows, children and dependents of those who are dead, and to labor for honorable provision being made for those who, in their declining years, are unable to support themselves."

Intermediate Rugby Champions

VICTORIA COLLEGE

City's Rugby Stars Make California Trip

Eleven of the city's top rugby players and members of the Crimson Tide were chosen by the selection committee of the B.C.R.U. for places on an all-star British Columbia team which will travel to California in April for a series of exhibition games against American fifteens, it was announced last nght.

The remaining 15 places on the 26 man squad which will leave British Columbia on April 3, for the southern jaunt will be made up from members of the Vancouver Lions Rep fifteen. Present plans call for the two contingents to travel to Seattle separately, where they will board an airliner and fly to California as a group.

The all-star team, which will be stripped in all-white with a large green Maple Leaf and the letters "British Columbia," "Canada" on the chest, will play a four-game series in the south meeting the University of California twice at Berkeley; the Petaluma American Legion at Santa Rosa, and the Olympic Club of San Francisco in the Golden Gate city.

DODDS NAMED COACH

Ard Dodds, coach of the Vancouver Lions and rated one of the top rugby strategists in the province over a number of seasons, has been named coach of the B.C. contingent, and in preparation for the trip has called a practice session at Brockton Point for next week-end. Referee Frank Bain and president Archie Gibbs of the B.C.R.U. will accompany the team on the trip.

Organizer of the trip is Col. Victor Spencer, ardent and long-time supporter of the game in the province. Col. Spencer believes that such a trip will further friendship with the sporting fraternity of California and initiate annual international contests between the two areas, supplementing the inter-varsity contests which recently took place in the south.

Manager of the potentially powerful all-star unit is Frank Blondheim, an official of the Vancouver Rugby Union and ardent supporter of the Meraloma Club of the mainland.

Local players who will take part in the trip over the Easter holiday season include Bob Mair, Joe Andrews, Ian Turner, Bill Van Druten, Albie Williams, Cliff Denham and Doug Bray as forwards; Dick Chungranes, Jack Gibbs, H. Olsen and Fred Ranson as backs.

Vancouver Reps follow: B. Blondheim, E. Cardinall, S. Caros, N. Cooke, G. D'Easum, D. Elvin, J. Ewart, B. Fitzimmons, M. Gandossi, Art Hicks, Bill Kinder, L. Mitten, B. Moore, O'Flaherty, and H. Winters.

Musgrave Scores All 4 Goals In Spencer's Win

Spencer's soccer team continued its winning ways in the Wednesday Football League yesterday afternoon edging out the Royal Canadian Navy eleven 4 to 3 in the first game of the Rennie & Taylor Cup round-robin series. Charlie Musgrave, right winger of the department store unit, was cast in the starring role as he banged home all four of his team's counters.

The winners, putting on tremendous pressure from the opening whistle, scored all their goals in the first half. Musgrave tallied his first counter on a solo effort and had completed the hat trick at the 20-minute mark, scoring twice on passes from Kulai and Ball.

Eddie DeCosta broke the goose egg for the sailors just before the intermission when he beat Rowe easily after taking a pass from Brown. Spencers came right from the centre kick-off and Msugrave scored again for his fourth goal.

Trailing 4 to 1, Navy made a determined bid in the opening minutes of the second half and with DeCosta and MacFarlane supplying the punch pulled to within one goal of the winners. Spencers defence stiffened just as suddenly as it had weakened, and although the sailors were dangerous for the remainder of the game they were unable to put through the equalizer.

By PETE SALLAWAY

HOPES of Bruce Woodcock, British heavyweight champion, of earning a world title fight with Joe Louis this summer, do not look too bright following his close decision over Stephan Olek of France. Woodcock, figured to finish off the Frenchman via a knockout, just scraped through to take the decision. Now the Britisher has to get over Joe Baksi, the rugged coal miner from Pennsylvania, in a bout on April 15. And Baksi will be a much tougher opponent than Olek, rated to be just a good warm-up for Woodcock.

LESS THAN two years ago Baksi, turned heavyweight contender, was ready to quit the ring. He hardly was able to earn his keep and found himself in the third-rate class after getting his ears soundly beaten off by Jimmy Bell, Joe Walcott and Lee Oma. On top of that he had managerial troubles, illness and bad hands. Baksi had decided to hang up his gloves and earn his living at some other work. He decided to give the fight racket one more whirl.

SUDDENLY BAKSI found himself winning again and in 1946 he registered four knockouts in as many appearances, finishing up with a six-round job on Freddie Mills in London last November. Baksi's break came when he accepted the bid to go to Britain and meet Mills. Until he whipped the British Empire light heavyweight champion he was strictly in the small-change class as far as money was concerned. A few days before the Mills offer he was offered $250 for a match by a small club promoter in Connecticut. His date with Woodcock probably will bring him $30,000. A victory will get him a date with Louis and some real money.

FROM J. Graham Graham, an enthusiastic rugby follower and keen player in his younger days, comes a letter supporting the remarks in this column a short time ago by G. S. Gibson. "This innovation of two referees, is in my opinion quite unnecessary and will prove detrimental to rugby football," Graham writes. "There are many objections to this dual referee system but space forbids. Let us not be carried away by any custom suited to other games but not to rugby.

"IT MAY be stated that rugby is first and foremost an amateur game and played by those knowing the rules and abiding by them. A word of thanks is due to the two fellows who acted as joint referees for the Victoria-Varsity match. They only did what was expected of them. The many mistakes made by the players unfortunately kept their whistles busy. Varsity's three-quarter line in attack was disappointing with their frequent mishandling, 'knock ons' and forward passing spoiling many first-class openings. Their high overhead haphazard passing is a dangerous practice and should not be cultivated. We witnessed good, open rugby by the well-coached Brentwood College fifteen against strong opposition in a game in which penalty kicks were few. Penalty kicks are becoming the curse of modern rugby for which the players themselves are to blame."

The C.P.R. Victoria Tennis Club will hold its annual meeting at the clubhouse tonight at 8, it was announced by Miss H. Grant, secretary.

Detroit Cinches Spot In Hockey Playoffs

The draw for the Stanley Cup playoffs was complete today with Detroit Red Wings entrenched in the final berth and that meant the National Hockey League's top four teams had about a week to formally wind up the schedule and map out strategy for the money round.

The Red Wings cut themselves in for a chance at the $81,000 players' pot when they blanked New York Rangers 2 to 0 last night to wipe out the last chance the fifth-place Blueshirts had of catching them.

The defending cup champion Montreal Canadiens already have first place wrapped up for the fourth straight time, with Toronto Maple Leafs second and Boston Bruins third.

So now the Red Wings will meet the Maple Leafs at Toronto Wednesday night in the opening game of a best-of-seven semi-final. The Bruins will start a similar series in Montreal Tuesday night.

The Maple Leafs took a 5 to 4 fall out of the Canadiens at Toronto in one while the Bruins ran up a 7 to 3 score at Boston against Chicago Black Hawks, long since counted out.

At Toronto, Montreal's Maurice Richard notched two tallies, his 42nd and 43rd of the season. Chicago's Max Bentley managed one assist at Boston and that leaves Bentley with 68 points, one more than the Rocket's total, with two games each to play.

PLAY IT CLOSE

The Red Wings played it close to the vest to oust the Rangers before a crowd of 14,389 at Detroit. Giving goalie Harry Lumley plenty of protection for his shutout, they hammered away at the New York nets until Pat Lundy broke the ice at 7.06 of the first period.

Sid Abel, lanky Detroit captain, sank the other.

At Toronto it was 4 to 2 for the Leafs at the end of the second after Ted Kennedy tallied and Apps added his second.

In the final frame, a pair of goals by Toe Blake and Richard tied the score but Harry Watson fired Toronto's winning tally at 10.09.

Meeker's goal was his 25th of the season, the rookie right winger thus breaking Gaye Stewart's N.H.L. mark of 24 goals, previous record for a first-year man.

Joe Carveth scored three and Woody Dumart two to pace the Bruins to victory over the Black Hawks before a Boston crowd of 13,900. The other Boston goals went to Bill Cowley and Schmidt with Adam Brown, Clint Smith and Frank Ashworth scoring for Chicago.

Doug Peden Paces Hornets To Victory Over Seattle

VANCOUVER — With rugged Doug Peden hitting the hoop for 18 points, Vancouver Hornets defeated Seattle Blue Devils, 70 to 60, here last night and remain in the fight for the Pacific Coast Professional Basketball League championship.

Hornets make their big bid for victory in the round-robin series against the leading Bellingham Fircrests here Friday and Saturday nights. Vancouver must defeat the Bells twice if they hope to pick off the honors.

Other high scorers for Hornets last night were Art Chapman and Bill Osterhaus, each with 15 points. Norm Dalthorp led the losers with 16.

Hornets played without the services of Norm Baker, out as the result of a one-game suspension. He will be back in the line-up against Bellingham.

George (Porky) Andrews, playing coach of the Hornets, received a bad cut early in the third quarter, but returned to the game late in the last session.

Seattle Defeats Portland To Tie Coast Ice Final

Seattle Ironmen battled to a 2 to 0 victory over Portland Eagles in Seattle last night to tie up the best-of-seven northern division Pacific Hockey League playoffs at one game each.

Stan Warecki shoved the Seattle sextette into the lead midway through the opening period on a pass from Bob Ballance. After a scoreless second period, Al Turner added the clincher with another marker in the final frame.

In the southern division, Los Angeles Monarchs defeated Hollywood Wolves 4 to 3 to take a 2 to 1 lead in their best-of-five series for the southern division championship.

Goalie Freckles Little and the Seattle defencemen were at their best as the Ironmen scored a well-earned victory.

John Gauthier, Portland centre, was the Eagles' bad man, getting mixed up in two swinging affairs. In the second period he took a clip at Warecki and in the third period mixed it up with Al Rittinger.

Kimberley Captures B.C. Hockey Title

NELSON (CP) — Kimberley Dynamiters, a crippled but fighting band of puckchasers, staved off a desperate third period rally by Nelson Maple Leafs Wednesday night to chalk up a 3 to 2 victory and capture the British Columbia senior amateur hockey championship.

Dynamiters, Allan Cup champions in 1936, will meet Calgary Stampeders, present holders of the coveted trophy, in a best-of-seven series opening at Calgary Monday night.

Playing with three players sidelined by flu, the Kimberley sextette dished out a rugged, airtight game to chalk up their victory.

Fresh Pineapples On Market Next Week

Fresh pineapples will again be on the local market at the end of next week, wholesalers announced this morning. It is expected that there will be a rush on the fruit as it has been off the market for some time and has always been a favorite with Victorians.

Expected to be on sale this week-end is asparagus from San Francisco. Carloads in yesterday and this morning include: California carrots and celery, Texas grapefruit (white and pink), Mexican tomatoes and B.C. potatoes from Merritt. Prices of the tomatoes are expected to be slightly higher.

Shipments of airborne spinach from California are now arriving twice weekly. Through the new service the spinach arrives in Victoria the day after it is picked.

Demand for seed potatoes has been very good, wholesalers say, and there is still a good supply of all certified varieties.

Pacific Coast Rangers Once More To Guard Canada's Long Littoral

By Canadian Press

The Pacific Coast Rangers—a band of tough, seasoned woodsmen—once more will be able to guard the Dominion's vulnerable Pacific frontier.

Faced with the threat of invasion by Japan's marauding hordes during the Second World War, military authorities—handicapped by their ignorance of local conditions — formed the Rangers by enlisting the aid of veteran bushmen to whom the secret trails and gullies along British Columbia's coastline were "home."

Final stamp of approval was placed on the Rangers at Ottawa Wednesday when Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, Chief of the General Staff, announced that volunteer frontiersmen in Canada's northern and coastal regions would be organized by the Defence Department as expert marksmen and guides to meet national emergencies.

LOGGERS SERVE

Backbone of the Ranger organization, which grew to a force of more than 6,000 men during the war, is the west coast logging industry.

People need only to watch a logger climbing like a squirrel up the towering trunk of a spar tree, or manipulating his donkey engine lines so dexterously that a huge log is laid down as gently as a baby, to realize these are skilled, cool-headed men accustomed to danger every day of their lives.

Others making up the Ranger force include trappers who know secret trails through the forests and who have cabins known only to themselves—ideal bases of operations in an emergency. There are farmers, who keep rifles handy to pick off marauding bears trying to prey on their stock. Some can blow the head off a crow at a hundred yards with a snap shot.

While the essential duty of the force which will eventually stretch from this part of the B.C. coast, north across the Arctic Circle, then down the east coast to Halifax, will be to supply military authorities with detailed knowledge of their areas, they will also be available, as during the war, to report on any unusual happenings in their sparsely settled areas — movements of suspicious craft, subversive or fifth column activity.

In this manner no stranger will be able to make a threatening move along any part of Canada's long, unsettled coastline, without word of it reaching military headquarters.

May Queen Contest, Parade Plans Near Completion By Lions

Plans for the gala May Queen contest, parade, crowning and ball on the night of May 23 are nearing completion by the Victoria Lions' Club, Harvey Baldwin, secretary of the May Queen committee, announced Wednesday.

A parade will begin at 8 from Cook and Yates and proceed to the Legislative Buildings where the crowning of the queen will tage place at 8.30. It is expected 15,000 to 20,000 people will watch the ceremony.

The parade will be headed by the Seattle Eagles' band, led by their trim majorettes. The Seattle girls' drill team and Seattle men's drill team will follow.

Next will come the Victoria girls' drill team, which will form the guard of honor for the May Queen. There will be a retinue of princesses.

Mayor Percy E. George, who is a member of the Lions Club, will crown the May Queen who will then proceed to the Empress Hotel to appear at the ball at 9.45. Victoria Eagles will stage a show at the Legislative Buildings, following the crowning ceremony. There will be two Eagles' bands and a 40-voice choir from Seattle.

The area will be flood-lit and the city will put on a fireworks display.

Ban On Milk Credit Was Move To Control Cost Of Distribution

The order prohibiting extension of credit on house to house milk sales was introduced to control costs of distribution, provincial milk controller Ernest C. Carr told the legislative agricultural committee today.

The board could now ignore bad debts as a factor in the cost of distribution, he continued, adding that delivery men, who generally bore the cost, did not want the order rescinded.

Suggested zoning of areas for distribution would make little difference in distribution costs, the milk controller believed, as the margin of profit on each bottle was so small that the distributors depended on volume for their profit.

Mr. Carr now has before him an application from Vancouver Island producers for an increase in price, but he said this was feared by the distributors, who believe such an increase would effect the volume of sales.

Cutting out milk deliveries and confining to store purchases would also make little or no difference in the cost of milk, according to the controller, who said the storekeepers even now are not satisfied with their one-cent-a-quart profit. The storekeepers would swallow up any saying in distribution costs.

At present there is a six-cent-a-quart difference between what the producer gets and the consumer pays. Three cents of this goes to distributors, the remainder to processing and handling. Distributors here are working on a slightly lower margin of profit than producers elsewhere in Canada.

Mr. Carr told the committee the board's jurisdiction at present lay in Greater Victoria area and Vancouver area, which covers the lower mainland up as far as Chilliwack. A preliminary survey has been made of these areas and the controller promised a complete survey during the next year.

Oak Bay Gives 4 Reasons For Assessment Cut

Oak Bay's stand in lowering their 1947 assessments was explained by R. F. Blandy, municipal clerk, in a report presented to Wednesday night's meeting of the council.

Reduction of the assessments, which lowered Oak Bay's share of school costs, placing a greater burden on the city and the two other municipalities, brought criticism from Victoria and Saanich.

Mr. Blandy's report included contents of a letter sent to Minister of Education G. W. Weir. The letter gives four reasons on which the action of the Oak Bay Council was based, as follows:

1. In 1945 the ratio of assessment to actual value was higher in Oak Bay than in Victoria and Saanich.

2. In 1946 Oak Bay, because of rising prices and building costs, added 10 per cent to its assessments of both land and improvements, in addition to the increases arising from new buildings. The other municipalities did not do this, so that in 1946 the scales were weighted more heavily against Oak Bay than in 1945, in any question of the ratio of assessments to actual values.

3. As a result of the change in the school law, Oak Bay had to pay more taxes for the same service, while Victoria and Saanich paid less. This disturbed relative values and created a new economic factor. This factor alone necessitated a cut in Oak Bay's assessment, or an increase in the assessments of Victoria and Saanich, or both. The range was from 10 to 15 per cent.

4. The Municipal Act requires that assessments shall be fair and equitable. School taxes represent a considerable part of general taxes—about half in Oak Bay. The change in the school system compels an assessor and a court of revision to take cognizance of equitableness throughout the school district. Oak Bay has merely obeyed the law in changing its assessment.

Commenting on criticism from Victoria and Saanich, Mr. Blandy said in his report: "The Victoria-Saanich position is based on the assumption that the assessments for the year 1946 were carried out by exactly the same methods, and all reflect with exactitude the same ratio of assessed value to actual value. Such an assumption is false. The true position is that in 1946 Oak Bay's assessments were closer to actual value than those of its neighbors, and Oak Bay paid more than its appropriate share of school costs.

"It seems highly probable that Oak Bay is assuming an unfair share of the load in 1947, considering unfairness merely from the point of view of the relationship of assessments to total assessments and true values," the report continued. "Under the 1947 assessment, Oak Bay pays 16 per cent of the municipal cost, but only furnishes 12 per cent of the total number of pupils."

Fire Scare Arouses Hotel Guests Here

The Beverley Hotel, 724 Yates Street, was the scene of considerable activity around 1.30 this morning as a result of a fire scare that aroused the guests with the sounding of the building alarm.

When the fire department arrived, many guests were in the hallways, some with their bags ready for flight. The firemen had considerable difficulty locating the source of the trouble. Finally they located a room on the first floor. Smoke had been seen coming out of the room and the alarm was sounded.

Getting no response to their knocks, a key was produced. On entering the room they found the wife up in a dressing gown, the husband in bed.

On questioning them, it was learned a towel had caught fire which had been quickly extinguished, but apparently not before someone had seen smoke and figured there was a fire. The man and woman had not broken the alarm glass, they told the fire fighters.

Fire Chief Joseph Raymond today, noting the difficulty his men had in finding the trouble, stressed the importance of guests co-operating with firemen so that they can get at a fire as quickly as possible.

The chief said it was such occurrences that sometimes led to disastrous fires, pointing to the big hotel fires in the east in recent months. "We don't want any of that here," he emphasized.

Investigator On Amalgamation Urged

Forrest L. Shaw addressed the Victoria Real Estate Board at the Empress Hotel Wednesday on "Analysis of Amalgamation — Greater Victoria Area." Telling members he was not speaking officially for any group but as a ratepayer who had given careful study to the possibilities of amalgamating Greater Victoria.

"A municipality is created for one purpose," Mr. Shaw said. "That purpose is to supply services to the individual which the individual could not get through independent effort."

Mr. Shaw said that there were five sets of local government in this area which limited one another and overlapped. While this condition existed the people would have to go without certain services, Mr. Shaw said. The services which they did receive, he said, would cost much more than necessary.

"Amalgamation is inevitable. No matter what the councils say the people are going to demand their services at the lowest possible cost," Mr. Shaw said. "Now is the time for amalgamation."

"I believe we should have an independent investigator come here and study the situation. If each municipality would put its cards on the table he should be able to suggest a plan which would be fair to everyone. When the councils had agreed on the plan it could be put to the people. If the plan was at all fair I think there would be no trouble in amalgamating this area," he said.

Bid Withdrawn

Gradwell Kilshaw reports that a $11,750 bid for business property at the southwest corner of Yates and Langley Streets, was withdrawn in an auction sale Wednesday.

A brick building comprising a store on the ground floor and offices on the second floor, stands on the property. The bid was withdrawn at the request of the solicitor for the vendor. The deal will be consummated by private treaty, Mr. Kilshaw said.

Legion Basketball Protest Disallowed

Cec Walton, council member of the B.C.A.B.A., announced today that the protest of the Canadian Legion basketball team on the use of Ron Weber in the provincial hoop playoffs had been rejected by the council members at a meeting in Vancouver today.

No New Buildings At Willows Track Council Informed

Report on the meeting between Oak Bay Council and Attorney-General G. S. Wismer in connection with the council's protest against the provincial government's proposed Horse Racing Regulation Act which would take the control of horse racing out of the hands of municipalities, was made at the Oak Bay Council meeting Wednesday.

As a result of the meeting the Attorney-General has agreed to recommend that the clause in the proposed bill which would allow the owner of the Willows to erect new buildings be deleted, the council was informed.

The actual wording of the clause to be deleted is as follows: "and may also authorize the owner of any such race track to do everything that may be necessary or convenient for the conduct of the race meeting."

A letter from Mr. Wismer was read to the Oak Bay Council stating: "It has been pointed out that if racing is to continue, substantial repairs will have to be made to the barns and grandstand; and we understand from you that there will be no difficulty in the way of these repairs being made to such an extent that racing can reasonably continue for the time being."

Commenting on the letter, Reeve Walter Walker said that he was quite satisfied with the arrangement, inasmuch as no new buildings that do not conform to residential specifications will be permitted on the grounds.

Saanich Firemen Use Creek To Quell Fire

Using water from a nearby stream because of the failure of the regular water supply system to fight fire, Saanich firemen were kept busy for 2½ hours yesterday afternoon fighting fire on the property of James Scott on Cedar Hill Crossroad at Borden Road.

Fire started from the spreading of a grass fire. While a chicken-house and storage shed were consumed by the flames, the firemen saved two barns, including one full of hay. Lieut. T. Moss led the fire-fighters.

Fire Chief Joseph Law of the municipality today noted the increased activity of the fire department, due to the big population and housing growth in Saanich during the last seven years.

"When I first came here our yearly runs on fire calls averaged 150. It is now double that," he said, including an increase in home fires due to the extensive building program.

The chief notes with favor the decision recently of the Saanich Council to build a new fire hall with an increased staff.

Code Won't Interfere With Union Contracts

A. E. "Dal" Grauer, president of the B.C. Electric, and representatives of the three unions representing 4,000 employees of the company, today received assurance of Labor Minister George S. Pearson that there was nothing in the proposed new B.C. labor code which would interfere with the present collective bargaining agreement of the company and the unions.

Interviewing the Labor Minister with Mr. Grauer were J. M. Ross, representing the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; C. S. Martin, president of the Gas Workers' Union, and Charles Stewart of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electrical Railway and Motor Coach Employees.

While the proposed new labor code provides for a voluntary revokable check-off of union dues, the Amalgamated Union has had compulsory revokable check-off for years. Closed shop agreements have been in effect between the unions and the company for more than 30 years.

"This may appear to be something different in the way of a labor lobby," said Mr. Grauer, "but since we feel that our labor relations have always been good it was only natural that both management and the unions should be concerned over the possibility of any legislation which might change this status."

Leniency Sought For Veteran Facing Boat Theft Charge

That this was the first blot on his client's 20 years record of good character and was an act done on impulse, was stressed by G. Alan Baker, defence counsel, today in city police court when he appealed to Magistrate Henry C. Hall for suspended sentence for Walter Duncan Taylor, Keatings Crossroad, who pleaded guilty to theft of a boat on March 12.

Magistrate Hall, after hearing Mr. Baker, remanded the case to Monday for judgment in order to have time to give the matter consideration.

Four persons took the witness stand to testify to the good character of the former naval veteran, who stole the 40-foot former R.C.A.F. crash boat, owned by Dexter Lewers, left it damaged on the rocks of Little Trial Island, and next morning was picked up on a makeshift raft by the Princess Joan.

In telling his story, Taylor said in passing the Causeway he saw the craft Fulmer moored there and had a sudden impulse to go for a spin. He secured the boat "and I got as far as Trial Island when I realized what I had done and was preparing to turn back when an engine went dead on me."

MAKES CRUDE RAFT

He said the second engine went dead also while he was trying to fix the other. Taylor said darkness had arrived and he used the searchlight shining toward shore to get help. He got no response and decided to go to the lighthouse on the main island. However, there was a stretch of water between himself and the bigger island and he abandoned the idea. Taylor said he then got a rope from the boat and affixed a log across four others and started to head toward the mainland.

He never made it. At 6.18 the next morning he was picked up by the C.P.R. ship, wet through and suffering from exposure, on the crude raft and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital to recuperate when the ship docked.

Taylor said he was anxious to make restitution to the owner for the estimated $500 damage to the craft.

He said he was taking a radio-telegrapher's course at Sprott-Shaw School and that on passing his examinations was bent on getting a job with T.C.A. or some other concern where radio-telegraphers were required.

Mr. Baker contended this was not an ordinary case of theft. His client had made no attempt to hide the circumstances in the case against him. Counsel pointed to the evidence of good character given the court and felt sure that if the magistrate suspended sentence his client would continue to lead the straight life he did before the boat incident.

Spring Day Concert Friday To Feature Two Fine Choruses

Under the auspices of the Recreation Council of Greater Victoria, the Spring Day concert on Friday at First Baptist Church will be given jointly by two of Victoria's finest choruses.

The Georgian Lady Choristers, under the direction of Mrs. Georgina Watt, who have delighted Victoria audiences over a period of 11 years. They will offer a joint concert with another equally distinguished group of singers, the Masonic Male Choir, under the direction of Mr. C. C. Warren. Mr. Warren has been in the foreground of musical work in this city for many years.

Proceeds of the concert will be used for the benefit of Recreation for elder citizens. New social centres are being found and developed in the different neighborhoods where the elderly citizens live. With a friendly cosy atmosphere, a centre easy of access is of importance if it is to serve older people.

Spring Renovation

Spring clean-up and renovation time is here with a vengeance, to judge from the building permits being issued from the building inspector's office.

The Daily Colonist on Broad Street is installing a new elevator shaft and penthouse costing $1,775. S. Monteith, 618 Fort Street, is making alterations to his store front and putting in a new stairway at a cost of $1,000. David Spencer Limited is making alterations to the ground floor by the Fort Street entrance, costing $1,275.

Capital Iron and Metal Works, at 1824 Store Street, is making a $1,200 addition to its office. Ian Woo is making $1,000 alterations to the store at 1713 Government Street.

New buildings for which permits have been issued are a dairy at 1645 Fort Street for Shepherd's Dairy, $9,500; a duplex with five rooms in each section at 459-463 Chester Street, costing $9,750, being puilt by Smith, Little and F. S. Little, and a 5-room house at 141 Olive Street, being constructed by J. Woods for $5,000.

I WENT into this store for a package of "digs," then paused by that wrack by "Steel-Briggs." So I sed to Trudie "What Do U say, we plant some pretty flowers to-day?" "Sure . . . Daddy . . . Sure . . . let's do that, look at this package, nice and fat!"

LOOK AT this bedroom suite we are just opening up . . . has a swing round plate mirror . . . comes in 2 finishes (blonde or brunette) and is only $135.

SO . . . for the next few minutes we went "wild-hog," and ended up with the whole catalogue. Plus 2 kinds of beets, two kinds of corn, and peas and beans and "Glory-Morn." And all other flowers that they had, bot little Trudie for her Dad. Not overlooking pickles and cucumbers, bot these enthusiastic humbers.

HUMBER'S have the best looking bed-daveno 3 Pcs. suites they have ever had . . . with the DOUBLE construction for just $169.

ON THE WAY home she had lots of fun, asking me the name of each pretty one. As she laid them out on the seat, then replaced them in the box, nice and neat, "Gosh . . . Daddy . . . won't Mummy B surprised," as she fondled each package, it's picture eyezed. "And look . . . Daddy . . . Oh, save my soul . . . THAT . . . I see a squash."

THRILLING TURQUOISE is the lovely floral velour cover on this luxury styled Chesterfield, only $295.

She rushed into the garden to plant this loot of flowers, vegetables and crawling fruit. But if we get any flowers, it's only by chance, on account of the way that she plants. She just dented the soil with her sole, then dumped the whole package in the hole. This she did while I looked for the hoe, opened and planted the whole blooming show. Spilling them all, even before we had lunched, our flowers this year are sure GONNA B BUNCHED.

Phil Palmer Has Seattle Guarantee Tied Up By Manager

SEATTLE (CP) — Phil Palmer, veteran Vancouver boxer who scored an easy 10-round decision over Buddy Hoffman of Seattle Tuesday night, had money trouble Wednesday.

Palmer had expected to collect a $1,000 guarantee for the bout but found that his New York manager, Abe Elkin, had obtained an attachment on his purse, seeking to collect $1,733. Elkin contended was due him under a manager-boxer contract signed in the east Aug. 15, 1944.

Palmer said he planned a legal fight to lift the attachment, which resulted from a suit filed in superior court here by Charles T. Corbin, to whom Elkin's complaint had been assigned.

A copy of a three-year contract between Elkin and Palmer was filed in court. It purported to give Elkin a third of Palmer's earnings for a three-year period. The complaint said Palmer earned $5,200 for fights in the northwest, against Mike Stankovich, Louie Bell, Charles O. Kelly, Johnny Suarez and Johnny Wells prior to Tuesday night's bout, and sought $1,733 as the manager's "cut."

Richard Within One Point Of Bentley

Maurice (Rocket) Richard moved within one point of Chicago's Max Bentley, league scoring leader, as he netted two goals for Montreal against Toronto last night. Richard has 43 goals and 24 assists for 67 points while Bentley who collected one assist in Black Hawks' game against Boston, has 28 tallies and 40 assists for 68 points.

Boston's Milt Schmidt moved into a third place tie with Detroit's Billy Taylor when he obtained two assists for 61 points. Ted (Teeter) Kennedy took over fifth place with a goal and an assist for 56 points one more than Doug Bentley of Chicago.

Leaders follow:

Premier King Recalls Church Union Days

OTTAWA (CP) — You can't beat United Church ministers when it comes to politics, according to Prime Minister King, who ought to know.

The Prime Minister, addressing a group of United Church clergy at a luncheon tendered Rt. Rev. T. W. Jones, D.D., Moderator of the General Council of the United Church of Canada, Wednesday recalled the days of 1925 when church union came before the Commons.

"There were ministers for and against church union flitting about the corridors of Parliament and in the lobbies. Members would pop in and out of the House and confer with ministers outside," said Mr. King, a Presbyterian himself.

"I tell you, as far as the clergy of the United Church are concerned—well, you can't beat them."

He told the story of one clergyman, anxious to obtain converts, who noticed a man bending over a radiator in the government lobby. Tapping the man on the shoulder, the minister asked: "Are you for the United Church of Canada?"

"No, dammit," the man replied, reaching for a wrench. "I'm the government plumber."

Seized Smokes, Drinks May Still Be Destroyed

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister McCann gave the Commons no assurances that his department will discontinue the practice of destroying liquor and cigarettes seized by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police or customs officials.

He was replying Wednesday to H. W. Herridge, People's C.C.F., Kootenay West, who asked that seized cigarettes be turned over to the Veterans' Affairs Department for distribution in military hospitals.

Dr. McCann said that in the two world wars the seized cigarettes were turned over to the Red Cross.

Base metals were down. Senior golds were up for a couple of key issues but down for half a dozen and secondary issues posted three times as many losses as gains without feature.

Toronto index:

20 Industrials	173.86, off .23
20 Golds	108.14, up .27
10 Base metals	88.06, off .69
15 Western oils	24.13, off .06

One Woman's Day

BREAD AND GHOSTS

I MUST SAY I RUBBED my eyes when I read a news item from London the other day.

For it revealed the astonishing fact that, despite the acute shortage of food and all the other miseries the people of Britain are enduring at the present time, the government has seen fit to placate a ghost with bread.

Why? To stave off an 800-year-old curse which becomes due on March 25, threatening dire results to an ancient English family unless a certain ancestral ghost is exorcised.

You would think that after eight centuries the ghost in question would have ceased bothering people, but evidently not.

MINISTRY RELENTS

IT WAS SIR ANTHONY DOUGHTY-TICHBORNE who approached the Minister of Food with his macabre tale.

And pleaded for 14,000 bread units with which to carry out the terms imposed by a long-dead ancestor requiring his family to give flour to every resident of Alresford, Hampshire, every March 25, which is Annunciation Day or Lady Day.

The Minister at first refused to grant Sir Anthony's request because of the exceptional shortage of flour, but finally relented.

It sounds like an old wives' tale, but the 34-year-old baronet, product of a sophisticated age though he may be, evidently believes in it. And here is the background of his belief.

MISER'S WIFE

IN THE YEAR 1150, the then Lady Tichborne, who had been bedridden for years, lay dying. A kindly woman, she wanted to leave some land to the villagers of Alresford, which adjoins the family seat, Tichborne Park.

But her husband was a notorious miser. And he sneeringly countered her request by saying that she could give them all the land she could move around.

By an almost superhuman effort she crept out of bed and despite her agony, crawled around 23 acres, which to this day are still known as "The Crawls."

As she died after completing her self-imposed martyrdom, Lady Tichborne took vengeance on her husband by imposing a curse.

TOOK VENGEANCE

SHE REQUIRED THAT on every Lady Day, the Tichborne family must give one gallon of flour to every adult villager and a half-gallon to each child in the village.

If the gift ever failed, she said, the Tichborne house would fall down. There would be a generation of seven sons, then a generation of seven daughters, and the Tichborne name would die.

It so happened that in 1796, when Lady Day came round, the family were all in France, so no gift was made.

According to legend, the ancestral house was pulled down in their absence. Then there came the first generation of seven sons, followed by that of seven daughters.

CURSE CAME TRUE

AS LADY TICHBORNE had prophesied 600 years before, the name did die out. But was restored by special royal decree after the lapse of one generation.

Perhaps this is another example of there being more things in heaven and earth than are dreamt of in our philosophy.

But the Tichbornes have had other trials to endure besides this ancient curse of a "stubborn, unlaid ghost that breaks her magic chains at curfew time."

Older readers will recall echoes of the Tichborne case which caused such a furore in the '70's and cost about £200,000.

In which Arthur Orton, son of an East London butcher, claimed, successfully at first, to be Roger Tichborne, who was lost at sea off Rio de Janeiro in 1854.

But that particular ghost was laid in 1874, when the impostor was finally exposed and convicted of perjury.
